A Blueberry Omelet?

Agway President Sees Positive Signs For Northeast Farmers

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The leader of one of the nation's largest farm cooperatives stated that there are several positive signs for northeast farmers in the midst of the farm crisis that continues to affect rural America.

Agway President William Hiller, speaking at the 22nd Agway Annual Meeting here Thursday, stated that despite significant current problems for individual farmers, a diversified agriculture, nearness to affluent markets and increasing per capita consumption of dairy products offer bright spots in the troubled farm economy.

"The fundamental problem is one of surpluses, low prices and high debt levels," Hiller said. "The farm crisis can provide opportunity for farmers and their cooperatives who manage their resources well, to adopt proven new technology and market aggressively."

The Agway president reported consolidated earnings of $16.6 million for the fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1986. This was up from $14.1 million last year continuing a four-year trend of improvement. Consolidated sales volume was $3.5 billion, down from $4.1 billion last year. Most of the sales decline was attributed to falling petroleum prices.

The Agway leader reported the farm cooperative ended the year in a strong financial position with an excellent balance sheet.

NEW DAIRY RESEARCH ANNOUNCED

In addition, President Hiller announced that the farm cooperative has entered into a contract with the Upjohn Company to conduct dairy cattle research on the practical effects of bovine somatotropin. The study is being

4-H Agents Convene In Hershey For National Conference

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HERSHEY — Over 1,200 4-H Extension agents from across the United States and Canada are meeting at the Hershey Convention Center this week for their 40th annual conference. "4-H Keystone of the Future" was the theme of the conference and set the tone for the five-day event.

Dr. Samuel Smith, president of Washington State University and former dean of the college of agriculture at Penn State University, told the agents that they are an integral part of the land grant system and reminded them that 4-H and the land grant universities have grown up together since they were signed into law by President Abraham Lincoln.

"We are unique and will never be duplicated," Smith told the delegates, adding, "No one does a better job of serving our society than our land grant system."

Smith states, "You are part of a vibrant system. We are not just educators; we are 'life-changers.' We are involved in a truly wonderful business."

Challenging the agents to have a "continuing commitment," Smith reminded them that as 4-H youth professionals they are role models for youth. He added, "You can never underestimate what you can accomplish, and never pass up an opportunity to let people know about what you do."

He suggested to the agents that they should develop more in-depth relationships with their local media and explore new avenues of promoting themselves and their land grant institutions. "No idea, if positive, is too radical to consider."

"Your initiative can help strengthen and expand the role of 4-H in land grant institutions."

Smith also urged the group to develop better internal communications, noting that it is important for them to become known on their home campuses, and for them to establish contacts with a variety of departments.

Keeping programs current is an important part of the agents' contribution to strengthening 4-H, Smith said. "We must learn from youth and parents and learn what's affecting them now. What are their needs and concerns?" He said agents have an obligation to offer programs in the areas of illegal drug use and personal computers, and pointed out that most universities have staff members available to present programs on these topics.

An international emphasis is also important in 4-H's future, Smith said. "The global community has become a point of interest. The United States must move out of its insularity." He said it is easy to add an international dimension to many programs.

4-H agents are valuable to their land grant institutions as potential recruiters and can help universities become aware of course offerings they will need in the future. He said, "No group is more expert than you are."

A full program of seminars and workshops designed for professional improvement was also offered through the conference.

In a 4-H showcase, 4-H members from Pennsylvania will highlight their programs. Giving presentations will be the Lancaster County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club, the Lebanon County 4-H Consumer Demonstration Team and the Dauphin County 4-H Cloggers.

Nation's Pork Producers Begin Checkoff

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — While cattlemen have been fattening the promotion and research kitty at the rate of $1 a head since Oct. 1, a similar pork checkoff program begins next Saturday, Nov. 1.

Like the beef program, the pork checkoff is mandated by Farm Bill '85. There are some differences between the two programs, though.

While the beef checkoff is $1 a head, hogs will be checked off at the rate of one-quarter of one percent on the gross amount received for any hog sold. The producer is responsible for paying that amount, while the buyer must collect it.

The 15-member National Pork Board will be responsible for administering the funds. Earlier this year, delegates from each state were responsible for nominating board members. Pennsylvania's delegates are Phil Frieling of Hegins and Dave Reinecker of York Springs.

While most of the checkoff funds are earmarked for national promotion efforts, a portion will be returned to each state, based on the state's annual hog marketings, according to Eugene Wingert, Pennsylvania's representative on the National Pork Producers Council's board of directors.

"There's a good possibility we'll go to 33 percent (return)," says Wingert, pointing out that two other states, Kentucky and Tennessee, fall into this category. States producing small numbers of hogs, such as New Hampshire, will realize a 39-percent return, while major producers, such as Iowa, with 11,000,000 head, will receive 16.5 percent.

Wingert estimates that Pennsylvania will generate $250,000 in checkoff monies the first year, based on annual marketings of 1 million head. that means 33 percent, or $82,500, would be returned to the state.

But don't expect an additional $82,500-worth of results right away, says Wingert, pointing out that Pennsylvania already has a voluntary checkoff of its own in force.

Wingert explains that the state's NPPC delegates adopted a three-tenths-of-one-percent checkoff two years ago, which actually exceeds the new rate. Since the program was voluntary, though, about 80 percent of the hog producers participated. Pennsylvania's return through this voluntary

Turn Clocks Back

Farmers will have to get up an hour earlier to beat the rooster out of bed tomorrow morning. Starting at 2 a.m. Sunday, Eastern Standard time will begin.

That means you'll need to turn the alarm clock back an hour before you hit the sack Saturday night. If you forget, listen for the rooster's crow as he announces the dawn, an hour earlier.

The time change signals the end of outdoor evening activites for many as darkness will fall early in the evening. The good news for early risers — it won't seem like the middle of the night when alarm sounds.

OPINION

Enjoy Nature At Its Best

It happens every year. Our forests don their red and gold garb for a royal display before the leaves flutter away from their summer home. In Pennsylvania and other northeastern states where hardwood forests cover millions of acres, the color display is particularly magnificent.

Why this fall splendor? According to an Indian legend, celestial hunters slew the Great Bear in the autumn. His blood, dripping from the sky onto the forest, colored many leaves red. Other leaves turned yellow from the fat splattering out of kettles as the hunters cooked the meat.

Other people had other legends. But now we know that the color change is caused by chemical processes that take place in green plants as the season changes from summer to winter.

According to the Wayne County Extension Service, the bright green of plant life in summer is caused by the pigment, or colored substance, known as chlorophyll. Chlorophyll absorbs energy from sunlight. The energy is used to transform carbon dioxide and water to carbohydrates such as sugar and starch. During summer nights, these sugars pass through the leaf veins to all parts of the plant.

Yellow pigments (xanthophyll) and orange-yellow pigments (carotene, which gives the carrot its familiar color) are also present in leaves. During most of the year, these yellowish colors are masked by the greater amount of green coloring. But in the fall, partly because of changes in the period of daylight and changes in temperature, the leaves stop their food-making process. The chlorophyll breaks down and the green color disappears. Then the yellowish colors become visible, giving leaves part of their fall splendor.

Colors that vary from yellow to red to blue are caused by the mixing of varying amounts of chlorophyll and other pigments during the fall season. Chemical changes in the leaves of trees such as dogwoods and sumacs give rise to reddish and purplish fall colors. Other changes turn sugar maple leaves to orange, fiery red, or yellow. In the leaves of trees such as quaking aspen, birch, and hickory, the yellow pigments dominate and are responsible for the yellow autumns foliage. Many oaks are mostly brownish, while beech turns golden bronze. The brown color in the leaves of these trees is caused by the presence of another substance, tannin.

Brilliant red autumn colors are formed when warm sunny days are followed by cool summer nights with temperatures below 45°F. Much sugar is made in the leaves during the daytime but cool nights prevent movement of sugar from the leaves. The red pigment called anthocyanin is formed from the trapped sugars. Familiar trees with red or scarlet leaves in autumn are red maple, silver maple, flowering dogwood, sweetgum, black tulepo or black gum, northern red oak, scarlet oak, and sassafras.

The degree of color change may vary from tree to tree. Leaves directly exposed to the sun may turn red while those on the shady side of the same tree, or on other trees in the shade, may turn yellow. The foliage of some tree species turns dull brown from decay and never shows bright colors.

The colors on the same tree may vary from year to year, depending on the combination of weather conditions. When there is much warm, cloudy, rainy weather in the fall, the leaves may have less red coloration. The smaller amount of sugar made in the reduced sunlight moves out of the leaves during the warm nights and no excess sugar remains in the leaves to form the pigments.

Conifers, commonly called evergreens, also have color changes in the fall. While most species of conifers keep their needles for several years, all shed some each year. The larch, a deciduous conifer, rivals even the most colorful hardwoods in the fall by turning several shades of yellow and dropping all its needles every year.

Fall foliage rightly draws our attention to the magnifence of our forest resource. And this year in Pennsylvania, the fall splendor provides the most appropriate decoration for the statewide Year of the Forest celebration. So let's get out into the woods and enjoy nature at its best.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Check Ventilation Equipment For Winter

Exhaust fans in dairy and poultry houses have a heavy ventilation job to do. They remove moisture and dust, and in many cases run almost continually from October to April.

To prepare your ventilation system for winter, several items may need attention. The fan blades, motor enclosures and louvered shutters need cleaned frequently. Loose belts are common on belt driven fans. Fan output varies directly with fan speed. A 10 percent loss in R.P.M.'s of the fan means a 10 percent loss in air delivery.

Check the thermostat for accuracy by hanging a thermometer beside it for easy comparison. Be sure the sensing element is clean and free from dust.

Have your fan motor protected by adequate overload protectors.

To Plan Winter Weed Control in Alfalfa

As the alfalfa plant slows down and prepares to go into dormancy, other plant populations in that same field can be increasing in vigor and growth. These are the winter annual weeds: chickweed, shepherds purse, yellow rocket and some grassy weeds which overwinter. All are in their young stages of growth.

You'll not see crop injury now, but wait until that first cutting comes off next May. Those same little weeds all will have flowered and set seed by that time. Not only do yield losses occur, but field curing problems and lower hay quality results.

Fall applied herbicide(s) will largely eliminate the costly winter weed problem. The Agronomy Guide lists a number of effective materials.

To Hunt Safely

The small game hunting season will open next Saturday. We need to remind ourselves to be courteous and considerate while hunting on farms. We encourage all hunters to practice good relations between farmers and hunters. Criticism of hunting often starts because a few hunters forget the landowner is his host. By observing a few sensible hunting manners, hunters will keep themselves from becoming uninvited guests.

Most landowners permit reasonable hunting. Asking permission to hunt is a small courtesy in return for a pleasant day in the field, yet too few people follow this rule. Landowners may actually need protection from indifferent, careless and destructive hunters. When the trouble starts, many farmers post their land for protection from irresponsible hunters.

It takes very little time and costs nothing to observe a few common courtesy rules while hunting: ask permission before hunting, close gates, pick-up litter after eating lunch and stay out ofunharvested crops. Keep a safe distance from buildings and livestock while hunting and be sure to respect the property of others as you would expect others to respect yours.

To Check Chimneys and Flues

The heating season is here and many stoves and heating units will be fired up. Is your system safe from a fire hazard standpoint? In this part of the state many tobacco sheds and barns have stoves for working conditions. There are many things that can happen to a stove pipe, flue, or a chimney that will allow sparks to enter into a building. We suggest these items be carefully checked before a fire starts. In some cases the chimney may need to be repaired or repointed in order to make it tight. Don't take chances with heating units. Building replacements are too costly.

LIGHTEN THE YOKE

October 26, 1986

Background Scripture: 1 Kings 11 through 12.
Devotional Reading: Amos 7:10-17.

As wise as King Solomon is reputed to have been, it is also true that he often ruled most unwisely. By the time of his death, there was far-reaching dissatisfaction in Israel with his heavy-handed and extravagant ways. So, when the twelve tribes assemble at Shechem, they say to Rehoboam, Solomon's son and heir: "Your father made our yoke heavy. Now therefore lighten the hard service of your father and his heavy yoke upon us, and we will serve you" (1 Kings 12:4). Unwilling to commit himself at this time, he asks for three days in which to consider this proposal.

BE A SERVANT

Rehoboam goes to his advisors for counsel in making a reply to the twelve tribes of Israel. The advice which they gave him is honest and wise: "If you will be a servant to this people today and serve them and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever" (12:17). No ruler ever got more sound advice than that.

But that was not the advice that Rehoboam wanted. Like many people, what he wanted, apparently was not advice, but confirmation in what he had decided to do. And from his young advisors he heard exactly what he wanted to hear: "Thus shall you speak to this people... 'whereas my father laid upon you a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke. My father chastised you with scorpions'" (12:10,11).

Although you and I can recognize what incredibly bad advice this was, still perhaps, we can understand the kind of thinking that lay behind it: Do not compromise with a challenge; respond with intimidation – show them who is boss! We can understand this line of reasoning because there is much of it abroad in the world we live in. Compromise is regarded as weakness; concilliation as a fault.

SO ISRAEL DEPARTED

Don't think for a moment that I am critical of Rehoboam because he didn't listen to the older advisers and hearkened only to those who were young. Age has nothing to do with it – except it is frequently true that age has the benefit of experience. Rehoboam made the same mistake we often make today, worshipping power as if it, not love, was the supreme force in the world. We may well have the power to make the yoke heavier, but often what we need to do is to lighten the yoke.

OTIS, DO YOU THINK THEY'LL FIND A SOLUTION FOR THE GRAIN STORAGE PROBLEM?
WELL... I THINK PART OF THE SOLUTION CAN BE FOUND IN THE CHAMBERS OF THE SENATE AND CONGRESS
HOW'S THAT?
HAVE YOU EVER SEEN THE SIZE OF THEM ROOMS? WE COULD SURE STORE A LOT OF GRAIN IN THEM.

Farm Show Contenders Named At FFA Lamb Roundup

BY JACK HUBLEY

NEW HOLLAND — Selection of Lancaster County's FFA Farm Show entries highlighted the county FFA market lamb roundup on Tuesday night at New Holland Sales Stables. The show was divided into two classes: one class contained those lambs to be selected for Farm Show competition and a second class would be offered for sale Thursday afternoon.

This year the show featured a separate judge for each show, and by show's end the pair had selected four half-brother lambs from B&B Livestock of Danville, Ohio, for champion and reserve honors in both shows.

Judging the Farm Show class was Greg Snyder, a Lebanon County Hampshire and Dorset breeder, who selected a Suffolk-Hamp crossbred owned by Margaret Herr, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, Narvon, for his champion.

A sophomore at Penn State University, Herr was unable to attend the event. Her lamb was shown by Heidi Quambeck.

Last year's judge was Snyder's sister, Gail Post, who selected lambs shown by Margaret Herr and Kristin Chupp for grand and reserve honors in 1985. Her brother did likewise this year, once again naming Christin Chupp's lamb reserve champion. The daughter of Barbara and Larry Weaver of New Holland, Christin's lamb was also a Suffolk-Hamp from B&B.

The other six FFA entries for Farm Show will be shown by Michelle Arment, East Earl; Kevin Bollinger, Lititz; Laura Folker, New Holland; Becky Weber, Narvon; Tammy Martin, New Holland; and Jeff Gehman, East Earl.

Sale Lambs

If the ultimate goal of livestock shows is to produce a better product for the consumer, then it seems that an experienced meat packer would be a logical choice for a show judge. Although you don't find a lot of packers in the showring these days, the FFA sale lamb class was an exception. Judging the show was Dane Fine of Dave Fine Meat Packing, Pittsburgh.

Fine slapped another Herr consignment for champion sale lamb honors, noting that the 130-pound Suffolk-Hamp would yield "the best carcass for the packer."

At reserve was Laura Folker of New Holland, better known for her hog show victories thoughout the county this season.

The daughter of Tony and Edith Folker, 14-year-old Laura bought her lamb from B&B at the "Top of the Class Sale" in Manheim this spring. This lamb also placed well at the Ephrata and Denver Fairs this year.

Other placings in the sale lamb class were as follows: 3.Jeff Martin, East Earl; 4.Gary Crills, Ephrata; 5.Janetta Shirk, Narvon; 6.Gretchen Frederick, Blue Ball; 7.Mike King, Narvon; 8.Elaine Zeiset, Narvon; 9.Gary Crills, Ephrata; 10. Jeff Martin.

Market Lamb Sale

Show judge Dane Fine put his money where his mouth was on Thursday, offering the top bid for Margaret Herr's champion lamb at the FFA sale held at New Holland Sales Stables on Thursday. Fine paid $4.25 a pound for the champion.

Although the champion in any junior livestock show traditionally garners the top bid come sale time, that wasn't the case in New Holland, when Harry Hein of Narvon offered $4.35 for Jeff Martin's third-place entry.

Show judge Dane Fine (left) returned to New Holland on Thursday to pay $4.25 a pound for Margaret Herr's champion lamb. Heid Quambeck showed the lamb for Herr.

The buyer of the reserve champion was Willie the Butcher of Stauffers of Kissel Hill, who paid $3 a pound for Laura Folker's lamb. Easily the sale's most enthusiastic buyer, Willie took home nine of the 26 lambs offered, while New Holland Sales Stables bought five and Walter M. Dunlap and Sons bought two.

The sale's average price was $1.18 per pound not counting the champion and reserve.

Results of the fitting and showmanship classes that preceded the lamb shows were as follows:

Fitting — 1.Kevin Bollinger 2.Laura Folker 3.Kevin Hoshour

Sr. Showmanship — 1.Kevin Bollinger 2.Gary Crills 3.Heidi Quambeck

Jr. Showmanship — 1.Chad Folker 2.Kristin Chupp 3.Tom O'Neill

Del-Mar Invitational Sale Averages $1,103

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

FAIR HILL, Md. — It was a cold Saturday evening when Denny Remsburg brought the gavel down to begin the 1986 Del-Mar Invitational Holstein Sale at the Fair Hill Fairgrounds. This was the second year for this select group of registered Holsteins from Delaware and counties on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The 28 head averaged $1,103 for a total of $30,910.

The first animal sold, a Straight-Pine Elevation Pete daughter, also happened to be the sale topper by selling for $2,025. Doreen Lowe consigned the heifer, Gallantry Pete Curio-ET; Walter Hopkins from Lewis, Del. was the successful bidder.

Curio will freshen in July 1987 to Whittier Farms Ned Boy. Her dam classified Excellent as an 8 year old and produced a top record as a 6 year old of 30,631 pounds of milk and 1,191 pounds of fat, milked three times per day.

Her next two dams classified Very Good with records over 20,000 pounds of milk.

Robert Knutsen from Cecil County, Md. bought the next high animal, Vermac Tony Patsy, with a bid of $1,900. This Marshfield Elevation Tony heifer, consigned by John Merryman of Sparks, will freshen in January to Glendell Arlinda Chief.

Her EX-90 dam produced a high record as a 5 year old of 21,090 pounds of milk and 839 pounds of fat in 296 days. The next dam scored Very Good and has records over 21,000 pounds of milk. The fourth dam in the pedigree is gold medal with a lifetime record of 116,100 pounds of milk and 4,847 pounds of fat.

Three more animals sold for bids over $1,500.

The sale ended with the unlocking of a collar on a Pinta Lane Conductor Jason heifer calf donated by Fair Hill Farm. Every consignor and buyer received a key and the key that opened the lock on the collar won the calf. Ted Reed possessed the key that turned the lock.

Walter Hopkins, right, bought the sale topper, Gallantry Pete Curio-ET, at the Del Mar Invitational Sale for $2,050. Robert Hopkins purchased the second highest seller, Vermac Tony Patsy, with a bid of $1,900.

Mercer County Dairyman Spea

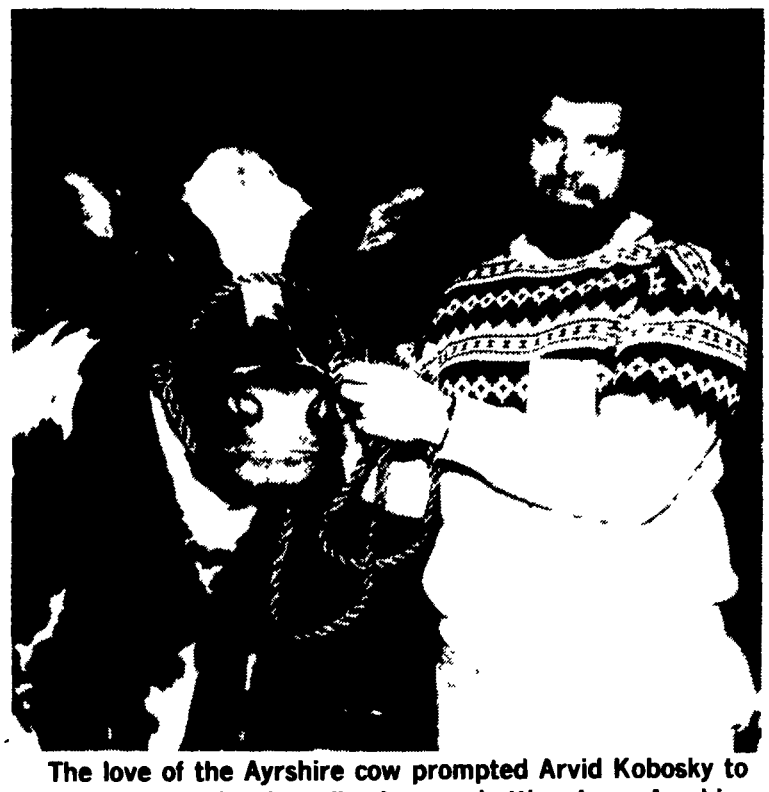
COCHRANTON — Ayrshire milk bottles pose a challenge for Mercer County dairyman Arvid Kobosky. To him the bottles represent the gold in a treasure hunt. He has been known to talk to scores of people and shift through dusty, forgotten boxes in search of a prize bottle.

Through these means, plus letter writing and long distance calls, Arvid has collected milk bottles from 104 different Ayrshire dairies and a total of 600 different dairies in the U.S., Canada and England.

Three of these milk bottles rise to the top of Arvid's collection.

Arvid places the most value on a pyroglazed quart bottle from Ardrossan Ayrshires in Villanova. Pyroglazed bottles, bottles with painted lettering, were common in the late 1930s and early 1940s. He estimates the vintage on this bottle to be after 1934 based on a story in a 1934 Ayrshire Digest.

This Digest featured retailers of Ayrshire milk and mentioned Ardrossan in particular, Arvid explained. He notes that Mrs. Scott didn't know the farm retailed milk until he inquired about the extent the farm's retail business.



The love of the Ayrshire cow prompted Arvid Kobosky to focus his milk bottle collection on bottles from Ayrshire dairies.

"I wouldn't sell this bottle for $1 million."

The prize bottle from Ardrossan shows an Ayrshire head and the words — Ayrshire milk. "I wouldn't sell this bottle for $1 million," Arvid said. Then with a chuckle he added, "But my wife might."

A Christmas gift from John Tutton, a milk bottle dealer and collector in Virginia, ranks second in value for Arvid. This bottle originated from the Penshurst Farm in Narberth and is of the embossed variety, the Mercer County dairyman notes.

Embossed bottles are the oldest type of milk bottles, and Narberth Ayrshires are found in the pedigrees of 90 percent of the registered Ayrshires, Arvid explained.

Adding to the historical significance and value of the bottle is it's intact paper cap. Arvid notes that will bottles survive the test of time rather easily, paper caps usually don't fare as well. This fact, he adds, make them a collector's item by themselves.

Rounding out his three most valuable bottles is a Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Ayrshire milk bottle. This is an embossed bottle from the 1920s or 1930s, Arvid said.

What makes the bottle so valuable is that few people know that life insurance company had a farm and they never operated a retail milk business.

The insurance company owned a herd of 50 Ayrshires at a farm in Wilton, N.Y. The company bottled the milk and shuttled it by train to the cafeteria of their office building in New York City. The cafeteria utilized the herd's entire production, eliminating the need for a retail route, Arvid explained.

He learned of the bottle through the editor of Milk Route Magazine, Tom Gallagher. He read the story in an old Ayrshire Digest.

"I try for a story on each dairy that I get a bottle from."

Arvid has a collection of Ayrshire Digests that date back to 1923. "I try for a story on each dairy that I get a bottle from," he said. The old issues of the breed magazine have also enabled him to find some bottles.

It is within the past 10 years that his collection has swelled to it's present 1,000 plus bottles level.

The milk bottle collecting fever infected him at an the precocious age of 6. "I guess I started collecting milk bottles from the local area because I knew then I wanted to be a farmer," Arvid said.

"When a different milk truck would go by, I'd flag it down to buy a quart of milk. I'd drink the milk and keep the bottle."

He grew up in the Pittsburgh suburb of Belle Vernon. Arvid never missed an opportunity to add to his collection. "When a different milk truck would go by, I'd flag it down to buy a quart of milk. I'd drink the milk and keep the bottle," he remembers.

During the summer when he was 10 years old, his family visited his brother in Nutley, N.J. The caretaker of the apartment building where his brother lived also operated a milk truck for Welsh Farm. Arvid would ride with and help the caretaker on his pre-dawn rounds. All Arvid asked for as pay was a bottle to remember the dairy by.

His devotion to adding to his collection found him working at one farm for a summer for the experience and a bottle as the only type of compensation, Arvid notes. "My parents tried to explain to me that was crazy, but it was worth it," he said.

One summer he worked on a farm to earn his first 4-H project, a Jersey calf. This calf enabled Arvid to meet and form a friendship with Carlton Squire of Bentleyville. This friendship would later help Arvid expand his milk bottle collection and form his own dairy herd.

Arvid's mother destroyed his original milk bottle collection while he served in the army in 1970 and 1971. "Mom didn't like clutter and she thought when I returned from the army I'd forget about the collection," he explained. So, during his absence she cleaned the cupboards and smashed his entire collection of 50 bottles.

In the process she temporarily destroyed his interest in collecting milk bottles, Arvid explained.

When Arvid decided to get back into the dairy business in 1976, he contacted Carlton Squire and purchased half of his herd from Squire.

Squire operated Avondale Farm, one of the top Jersey herds in the state during the 1940s. The Jersey breeder knew of Arvid's earlier interest in milk bottles and let him rummage through some boxes in search of milk bottles as well as giving him bottles from his Avondale Farm.

"Why I saw the bottles advertising Jersey milk and Jersey cream — the bug started again."

"When I saw the bottles advertising Jersey milk and Jersey cream — the bug started again," Arvid notes.

His collection advanced after he read an article in Lancaster Farming on Ralph DeVillars from Kane. DeVillars, the eastern writer for a milk bottle magazine located in California, was a full-time collector. After a visit to Kane, Arvid returned home with a couple of boxes of milk bottles.

He describes DeVillars and John Tutton as the two people who have helped him the most with his collection. "They put me on to enjoying the bottles' styles and designs," Arvid said.

Due to the large number of bottles available, Arvid narrow his collection on Ayrshire dairies. "The love of the Ayrshire cow swayed me to mainly collect milk bottles from Ayrshire dairies," he explained. He is especially interested in Ayrshire dairies from Pennsylvania.

He also collects hard to get breed bottles such as Holstein, Brown Swiss and Milking Shorthorn. His collection includes 14 Holstein dairies, 12 Brown Swiss dairies and one Milking Shorthorn dairy. "The Milking Shorthorn dairy was next to impossible," he said.

He notes he just missed a bottle from a Dutch Belted dairy in Florida earlier this year.

To trace bottles he will attend milk bottle shows, advertise or look up locations of farms in old Digests and plan a vacation in that area.

"I love crawling through old milk houses and sheds to see what I can find," Arvid explained. Many times, however, he finds houses or stores setting where the barns once stood.

One of his hunts turned up boxes of bottles, a model Ayrshire cow from the 1940s and a showbox full of old Digests.

"Every time I think I have all the possible bottles, another one turns up," Arvid said. He explained that many dairies either didn't advertise, were small, or didn't specify their milk as Ayrshire milk.

He is especially interested in collecting bottles from Ayrshire dairies in Pennsylvania. Arvid knows of 29 Pennsylvania Ayrshire dairies that retailed milk. His collection has a representative bottle from 23 of these dairies, he noted. "I'm always interested in learning of and collecting bottles from the surrounding area," Arvid said.

This passion nearly caused him to kill members of his family in September, he jokes. While cleaning they accidently threw three bottles in the burner. He was able to salvage the Spruce Villa bottle from Milt Brubaker's Ayrshire farm in Lititz. Knowing he would never get another one, Arvid scrub the pieces and superglued them back together.

His collecting fever has also infected his family. Last year his daughters, Kristie and Michele, requested Ayrshire milk bottles on their Christmas list, (Santa Claus delivered,) and his wife, Kathy, collects the half ounce and three-fourths ounce coffee creamers.

This display of milk bottles show some of the variety of glassware Arvid has collected.

"The bottles come before my wife and after the kids; the cows come before my wife — maybe."

"I like to refer to my collection as my retirement income, if and when I ever retire from farming," Arvid said. He admits that selling the collection would be difficult and suggests other options as handing the collection to his children or donating it to a museum. That is if he ever decides to stop collecting.

Arvid describes his love for the Ayrshire cow and milk bottle collecting as consuming passions. He notes, "The bottles come before my wife and after the kids; the cows come before my wife — maybe."

Vitamin And Mineral Feeding Headache Explained

BY DR. GEORGE
F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — When one of our better cows milks 80 pounds, she gives up daily in that milk alone at least 45 grams (28 grams equal 1 ounce) calcium, 34 grams phosphorus, 4 grams magnesium, 56 grams potassium, 25 grams sodium, 16 milligrams (1 milligram equals 1/1000 gram) vitamin B_1 (thiamin), 64 milligrams vitamin B_2 (riboflavin), 34 milligrams niacin, 126 milligrams pantothenic acid (vitamin B_5), as well as many other minerals and vitamins that are equally essential.

And this daily excretion in milk is only part of the total daily loss, because minerals and vitamins are also excreted in urine and feces.

How well are we doing in daily replacement of these minerals and vitamins by way of feeds? A cow may eat 50 pounds of corn silage and 5 pounds of alfalfa hay a day for basic roughage. This usually supplies about 45 grams of calcium, 24 grams of phosphorus, 23 grams of magnesium, 123 grams of potassium, 5 grams of sodium, 163 milligrams of vitamin B_1, 61 milligrams of vitamin B_2, 406 milligrams of niacin and 242 milligrams of pantothenic acid.

In terms of her milk secretion, this roughage should supply the cow with adequate calcium and more magnesium, potassium and B vitamins, except for B_2, than she needs, but she will be 30 percent short on phosphorus and 80 percent short on sodium, plain salt.

Supplementing her forage ration with grain would be simple for our example cow, if we knew that all these minerals and vitamins would get into her metabolic system in the amounts present in the feed trough. And here's where the headache starts.

Recent research has shown that intestinal absorption of calcium may only be between 10 to 40 percent; absorption of magnesium, 25 to 75 percent; phosphorus, 70 percent; with iron, zinc and manganese less than 10 percent of the amounts eaten. Niacin in grains is almost totally unavailable. This holds true for heat-processed soybean oilmeal, as well.

Vitamin B_1 deficiency has been observed in cattle and nursing calves, while their feeds appeared to have excess amounts of this vitamin. The deficiency was caused by antivitamin B_1 factors produced in the rumen that destroyed or blocked absorption of this vitamin.

Sulfur supplementation, with calcium sulfate, for example, aggravated this destruction, as did a change of ruminal pH. Preventing acidosis of raising rumen pH helped prevent vitamin B_1 destruction. Acidosis is a likely consequence of high grain feeding, especially when large amounts of grain are given at one time, rather than over many meals in small amounts per day.

Poor mineral absorption during digestion can be due to several causes. Some feed compounds such as phosphates, fats, oxalic acid and phytic acid render some minerals such as calcium, zinc, iron and magnesium insoluble and thus unavailable. An excess of one mineral, such as copper or lead, can inhibit absorption of another, such as iron or zinc. On the other hand, vitamin D enhances calcium absorption, and vitamin C enhances that of iron.

High roughage diets with large amounts of indigestible fiber — as important as this is to maintain milkfat — have the disadvantage of decreasing absorption and increasing fecal excretion of calcium, magnesium, zinc and phosphorus. Most B vitamins are normally synthesized in the rumen in sufficient amounts. However, niacin and vitamin B_1, B_2, and B_{12} supplementation has been beneficial to dairy cows under certain conditions, such as early lactation peak yield periods or when nursing calves.

How do we get rid of this headache? Analyses of cattle hair have given mixed results so far, except for a few really serious long time deficiencies. Blood analyses of minerals like calcium can show low levels when feed supplies are poor or phosphorus intake is high. However, this analysis will fluctuate, since bone mobilization replenishes blood levels.

Low phosphorus blood levels are somewhat related to diet but also undergo normal daily up-and-down cycles. Sodium and potassium levels in cattle blood are normally in a close range, so abnormal analyses do indicate problems. Other elements and vitamin levels in blood have been studied too little to know if they can serve as useful indicator values.

This takes us back to the feed trough and the application of common sense calculations that incorporate these research findings, and observation of each cow — more than once a day. That glossy coat and alert gleam in her eyes are still good indicators of sufficient mineral and vitamin status, as unscientific and unmodern as this approach may sound. That's why good personal management with top cow-sense has not yet been replaced by computers.

Textbook assumptions about adequate B vitamin supplies for our high-producing cows must be treated with considerable caution and scepticism. Certainly, our 80-plus pound cows, like today's high-performance athletes, routinely require dietary supplements above the average norms. It's up to us to see that they get them.

Shiner, Wagner Named Lebanon's Top 4-H'ers

LEBANON — The Lebanon County 4-H program named two Outstanding 4-H'ers during 4-H Achievement Night held Oct. 15 at the Lebanon County Municipal Building.

Damian Shiner, Myerstown and Sharon Wagner, Lebanon, were honored with the highest county 4-H awards based on the excellent quality and variety of their 4-H projects and activities. "Farm preservation starts with the family"

BILL SCRANTON

Bill Scranton He'll get the job done

There's no farmer running for governor this year. But Bill Scranton sure thinks like one. He understands farming. The problems we face.

That's why our committee of farmers, veterinarians and agribusiness people are supporting Bill for governor.

Take farm preservation. It's not so much soft soap for Scranton. He sees our prime farmland as "a treasure Pennsylvania must maintain." And he promises to make farm preservation laws work for you.

But that alone won't do it.

"Farm preservation," he says, "starts with the family."

That's why Bill came up with an action plan to put more dollars in farmers' pockets and cut costs of property taxes and livestock diseases.

To get top dollars for farmers, Bill Scranton will use low interest loans to attract new food processing plants . . . provide state aid for farmer markets . . . step up research on high value crops and new food products.

And he'll keep market roads open by giving priority to repairs on the Agri-Access Network.

Cost cutting plans start with property taxes. In some counties, farmers tell Bill, they pay 20% of their income for school taxes while non farmers pay 6%. Bill's ready to roll up his sleeves to win local tax reform. Talking's over.

Livestock diseases can cut deep into income, too. Scranton will prevent costly epidemics by increasing inspection of farm animals and poultry. He'll also boost disease research.

Bill Scranton understands farming. He'll get the job done.

Two Pa. Agents Receive Distinguished Service Awards

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HERSHEY — Two Pennsylvania 4-H Agents received the prestigious Distinguished Service Award at the 40th annual convention of the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents here this week.

Roxanne F. Price, York County, and Carol J. Schurman, Indiana County, were recognized for their outstanding work in 4-H by their peers at a banquet held Friday night. It was especially fitting that they should be honored this year when the conference was held in Pennsylvania and they served as co-host coordinators.

Schurman said the award was especially meaingful because it was bestowed by her peers, adding, "That is the hardest award to get, but it is nice to get it."

Both women grew up in the 4-H program in the state — Price in Yourk County and Shurman in Cumberland County.

Price manages a 4-H program that has 2,700 traditional and school enrichment members and 300 volunteer leaders. She has helped implement a Middle Management committee system and has project Key Leaders who are a vital part of her program.

She says, "The Key Leaders are people who have a special interest and knowledge of a specific area. They help new leaders and determine program training needs. I also refer phone calls to them."

Enrollment in the 4-H program in York is about evenly divided between traditional 4-H and the school programs. Last year they began embryology projects in the schools and they also have a black locust project in which students raise a seedling. Price said this lends itself to experiments in science class and has been well accepted.

She said, "We still stress the traditional 4-H program in community club settings because there are more advantages there.

As a 4-H'er, Price had home economics related projects.

Shurman was recognized for developing a "quality program with emphasis in communication arts, teen development and leader development." Her demonstration workshop has been presented to nearly 1,000 people at the county, regional and state levels. Schurman says, "We have a lot of communications workshops because I think it is important that we help 4-H'ers as a group become part of the real world. She said she presents the program to all levels, and has had school teachers tell her they can always spot 4-H'ers because of their ability to speak in class.

As evidence of the program's importance and success, she said they have nearly 40 4-H'ers at their county demonstration night.

She said she also works in leader developoment, stressing state, regional and national forums, and works with teen leadership, including career guidance. She puts leaders to work in planning programs, saying she has "lots of committees."

Schurman had dairy related projects as a 4-H member in Cumberland County, and has been an agent for nine years. There ar 750 4-H'ers in Indiana County.

Carol Schurman, Indiana County, at right, and Roxanne Price, York County, left, received Distinguished Service Awards at the 4-H agents annual convention this week.

Miriam Lowrie, a 4-H agent from Oregon, is interviewing numerous 4-H leaders in an attempt to discover why some remain active even after their own kids are out of the 4-H program.

Oregon Agent Seeks Clues To Keeping Leaders Active

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HERSHEY — Why does a 4-H leader remain a leader long after his own children are finished with 4-H? Miriam Lowrie, a 4-H agent from Pok County, Oregon, is spending about seven weeks of a four-month sabbatical to find the answer.

She is traveling to five states and interviewing dozens of veteran 4-H leaders to gain clues to what keeps 4-H leaders active.

So far, Lowrie has interviewed 10 Pennsylvania leaders and says, "You have a real caring group of people. They care about kids and enjoy seeing them mature and develop into resourceful people."

Of those interviewed, Lowrie says, about half have been 4-H'ers themselves, and most started as leaders when their own children were in 4-H. She says they stayed on because they saw what the program did for their own children. She said, "They really want to contribute and share skills."

Lowrie says she hopes to see if there are trends which can help 4-H agents learn about leaders and perhaps encourage new leaders to remain in the program. She said in the 4-H volunteer leader program there are leaders who serve just one or two years, those who serve while their own children are part of the program, and those who stay on for longer periods. "These are the ones who have strongly made a commitment."

What Lowrie is searching for are "commonalities." She said, "I want to see what appealed to those leaders and perhaps it will help us in keeping people involved. Perhaps there is some feedback and recognition that we should be giving beginning leaders."

She is taking pictures of all the leaders interviewed and hopes to be able to present a program on her work at future conferences.

One thing she has already learned is that "there are wonderful, caring people no matter where you go. 4-H is what brings us together. You could come to us in Oregon and find the same caring people. 4-H is a real positive thing."

Lowrie praises conferences such as the one at Hershey, saying, "I have learned so much. You see different ways of doing things. The professional development opportunities are wonderful. I have a hard time picking among the many good seminars being offered."

Lowrie herself was never a 4-H'er and had not heard of the Cooperative Extension Service until she began applying for jobs. She has worked as a 4-H agent in Oregon for 15 years.

Quilt Emphasizes Pennsylvania's Friendliness

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HERSHEY — A "Friendship Quilt" was one of nine treasures won by visiting 4-H agents attending the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents annual conference in Hershey this week.

The brainchild of Pennsylvania 4-H agent Sandy Rose, Tioga County, the quilt has 44 squares created by 4-H members, leaders and friends throughout the state.

Rose said, "We are emphasizing the friendliness of Pennsylvania following the theme 'You've got a friend in Pennsylvania.'" The project began three years ago and the contributors were told what kind of fabric to use, the size of their square and that the patch should represent something from their county. Adams County's square, for instance, featured an apple, while Allegheny's county featured the three rivers.

The center of the quilt, which is king sized, has the logo for the 40th anniversary convention. The actual assembly and quilting were done by Karen Phillips, a quilting instructor from Fayette County.

The quilt has attracted much attention, but is one of nine prizes awarded to winners of the treasure chest. Keys to the chest were distributed to those who attended last year's annual conference. Others could purchase a key for $1.

If the key fit, the winner selected one of the envelopes in the chest which revealed which prize was theirs.

Another quilt is being offered, this one quilted by 4-H leaders and members from Adams County. The quilt from Adams County is single bed size, and has the names of the patch-makers attached to the back.

Other prizes include a one week's stay at Hershey Lodge, a Tandy 1000 Computer and monitor, a ruby ring with diamond center, a VCR, a $100 bill, visionware cookware from Corning and a 35 mm camera.

4-H agents Sandy Rose, right, of Tioga County, and Darlene Resh, Adams County, display the Friendship Quilt that was one of nine treasures given to visiting agents.

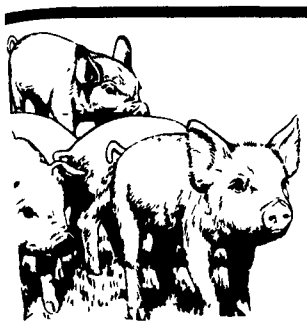
Dietrichs Announces Bonus

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Progressive Dairymen's Cooperative, Inc. has inaugurated a new seasonal bonus incentive plan developed by United Dairy Cooperative Services, a division of NEDCO, and Dietrich's Milk Products, Inc. Dietrich's owner/operator of the Middlebury Center, Pa. Milk Manufacturing Plant, has offered this opportunity to Progressive producers to encourage more production in the fall months when milk is needed most.

Progressive's Program is a two-fold plan to reward producers for increasing milk during the fall or short supply season and also for improving total production by increasing their production base. This program is available to all United member cooperatives shipping to Dietrich's.

Each member's base is calculated as the daily average per farm for milk produced in the base-forming months of August, September, October and November. Under the seasonal premium plan, a premium of 10 cents per hundredweight will be paid on all base pounds for the base-forming period and two cents a hundredweight paid on all base pounds during December, January, February and July. No premium payments are made during the flush season of March, April, May and June. In addition, an extra premium of 50 cents per hundredweight will be paid during the months of August through November on all milk produced over and above the farmer's base established the preceding year.

"Other cooperatives have adopted seasonal incentive programs," stated United President James Patsos, "but we feel ours is more advantageous to the dairy farmer. This is an additional bonus to the farmers that Dietrich's and United is able to provide to their producers along with the solids-not-fat premium."



Thanks and Congratulations

Pa. Grange Works To Help The Deaf

HARRISBURG — The American Christian Academy along with help from the Pennsylvania State Grange, and the Juniata, Mifflin and Franklin Pomona are working to break the barrier of silence for deaf students who attend ACAD.

On Saturday, Oct. 18, Wanda Gallimore, the Pennsylvania State Grange deaf chairman, presented the academy with a $2,000 check to be used toward improvements in the school.

In addition to the monetary donation, the pomona presented a school representative with several small appliances. Money, however was not the only contribution. The pomona donated time and manpower. Grangers spent their Saturday doing "muscle-work" as they stripped the paint off the walls in preparation to brighten them with a new coat.

The Grangers found it appropriate to concentrate their improvement efforts on the home economics department of the school. The school, which opened its doors on Sept. 4, 1984, was an abandoned elementary school building. The founder of ACAD, Rev. C. Ray Roush, watched his dream come true as the doors opened on that first day.

Students at the academy are encouraged to develop their abilities in communications. This includes: speech, speech reading, the use of residual hearing, sign language, finger-spelling and writing.

The school offers the latest innovative and resourceful methods in the education of the hearing-impaired, including computer technology in the classroom. Classes from kindergarten through high school are offered.

When speaking of the old elementary building, Gallimore said, "The work here looks overwhelming, but they are moving right along." She added, "The Pennsylvania State Grange will continue to work with the pomona to make dreams come true for the school."

The State Grange Youth Director, Dina Zug, who is also the deaf chairman for the Juniata, Mifflin and Franklin Pomona, said, "Next year, I hope we will be able to contribute more money toward this, and I am trying to encourage subordinate granges to donate small appliances to the school."

Handling Round Bales

The advantages of handling hay in large bales are usually more evident in the field than during storage or feeding. To maintain quality and reduce feeding losses, a few simple steps can be followed.

High losses can result from storing bales directly on the ground with no cover. Some farmers report success using tires to elevate bales off the ground and promote drainage. The savings in quality and quantity may justify the cost of a shed, or at least a plastic cover stretched over bales stored on a well-drained site.

Barns must have adequate headroom for tractor stacking and strong enough sidewalls to support large bales resting against them. A heavy bale on the end of a tractor loader can easily tip the tractor — be careful and use common sense. Hay mows of old bank barns often do not have adequate flooring to support the concentrated load of a large tractor carrying a large bale. Post locations and inadequate walls further complicate use of such barns.

Since large bales don't fit into most traditional feeding systems, ring feeders are often used in lots or pastures. Feed wastage can be high, especially when animals pull quantities of hay off a new bale and out of the feeder. It is necessary to work among the cattle to check feeder contents and add a new bale.

Penn State agricultural engineers and animal scientists have developed a portable feeder that can be placed along a fence line to allow bales to be added from outside the yard. The feeder is built from welded pipe and angle iron. A sloped bottom and bale stop keep the bale off the ground and allows "self feeding" while forcing animals to reach through bars for the hay. This reduces the tendency to pull large wads of hay out of the feeder onto the ground.

Plan 770-521, Two-Stage Round Bale Feeder, is available from county extension offices.

Maryland Co-ops Host First Banquet Honoring Cooperative Month

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

NEW MIDWAY, Md. — The first annual "October is Cooperative Month" banquet, sponsored by the Maryland Council of Farmer Cooperatives, was a complete success by any measure. Over 200 people representing the 57 farmer cooperatives statewide, packed the New Midway Firehall for the family-style meal and program.

The Maryland Council of Farmer Cooperatives' President, C. Rodman Myers, Thurmont, noted that while the council has been functioning for a quarter-century, this is a new venture. He explained, "This is a new event and the council sponsored it to try to get more people involved with the council and to raise public awareness of Cooperative Month."

In his introductory remarks, Myers read the official proclamation made by Governor Harry Hughes proclaiming October Maryland's Cooperative Month. Myers and Council Vice-President Leroy Dudrow received the proclamation on behalf of the Council in ceremonies held at the Governor's office earlier this month.

The program for the evening was two-fold. William Kaiser, general manager of Capital Milk Producers, Inc., gave a presentation on the history and scope of operations within the co-op.

Kaiser opened his presentation stating, "The organization of Capital Milk is the most unique, interesting and exciting cooperative in the nation."

He substantiated that claim by noting that Capital markets 80 percent of its volume through its own stores. There are 352 Highs Stores which carry 3,000 product-line items. Capital, organized as a marketing cooperative, will gross $218 million on product sales this year, plus an additional $30 million in gas sales from the 25 percent of the stores that sell gas.

Kaiser said the co-op employes people representing 18 different countries, to add an interesting dimension. The co-op's product line will include 22 million gallons of fluid product this year as well as over 20 million dozen of novelty ice cream products. Capital is the largest novelty ice cream producer on the eastern seaboard.

However, Kaiser noted that while Capital's 145 dairy producers market their products in the most profitable corridor in the country, stretching from Richmond, Va. to Boston, Mass. their success has in fact become a major problem in regards to their equity.

Kaiser explained: "The larger we grow, and we must grow, the more equity we need. Our membership has the highest average membership equity of any co-op in the country. To sustain our growth, we need ever greater sums of equity."

So, with a unanimous vote from its 9-member board of directors, Capital is now engaged in what Kaiser called "an exercise" of meeting with prospective buyers. Kaiser outlined the process stating that a second round of bidding had commenced on September 16. The Board had a closed meeting on October 15 to consider these bids and a general membership meeting will be held October 29 to ratify the Board's actions. Kaiser hopes to have this exercise completed by the end of the co-op's fiscal year, which is November 30, and not later than December 31.

On the youth education side of the program, Walkersville High School vo-ag students, Greg Stull and Melinda Horner gave presentations on their involvement in the Maryland Institute of Cooperative Education and National Institute of Cooperative Education programs.

M.I.C.E. is a three day intensive education program on cooperative structure and management held annually at Summit Lake Camp near Emmittsburg. Twenty to 40 young people, ranging in age from 16 to 21, make up the session. They are not all farm youngsters though most have some vo-ag or 4-H experience. There is a contingent selected each year from M.I.C.E. to attend N.I.C.E.

During their slide presentation, both Stull and Horner encouraged the co-op members in attendance to nominate more youth from their respective geographical areas to attend the 1987 M.I.C.E.

62 Head Slated For Nittany Fall Classic

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Nittany Fall Classic, a consignment sale of Holstein dairy cattle, will be held at the Ag Arena on Penn State's University Park Campus, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 31.

"The auction will have 62 quality cattle up for bid and nearly one-half of the animals are milking cows," says Kim Kriebel, sales chair. Kriebel is a senior majoring in dairy production at Penn State.

The Nittany Fall Classic is free and open to both buyers and spectators. Co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association and the Penn State Dairy Science Club, the sale is designed to give students experience in sales and merchandising.

Members of the Dairy Science Club have made most of the arrangements for the sale. In addition to promotions, they have been in charge of registering consignment cattle and will take care of all preparations including washing, clipping and showing the animals for sale. Some members will assist the auctioneer by receiving bids. Last year's sale average was $1,606 per head.

Penn State's Dairy Science Club, which currently has 90 members, was named number one in the nation last year. The Nittany Fall Classic was rated one of the top university-sponsored sales in the nation. The club will use its share of sale profits to support club activities and field trips.

The Penn State Dairymen's Club, an alumni group that supports student activities, will join students in offering visitors free coffee, milk, cheese and other snacks during the pre-sale period.

Doors will open Friday, Oct. 31 at 9 a.m. to visitors and buyers can inspect and evaluate the animals. The auction begins at 11 a.m.

The Ag Arena is located at the corner of Park Street Extension and Porter Road near Beaver Stadium. Parking is free.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

New, Better, Prettier, Sexier

Nearly everything you see on television, hear on radio, or read in the newspaper and magazines is aimed at selling.

Everyone, including you and I has something to sell. If people do not beat a path to our door for what we offer, the price goes down, or we lose our market. So everyone from the corner grocery to GM and AT&T and Ivory soap spends money to get our attention and our money. It's called advertising.

Notice the trends in advertising, especially on TV. They never stop at just telling us that they are there and have a product they would like you to buy.

Why not?

It always has to be a "new and improved" version of what they sold last year. It is always "bigger", "faster", "cheaper", "tastier", "more nutritious," or makes you smell better.

If sugar and fat is unpopular, we are assured that the item is fat free and contains Nutra-sweet. The present version is always sleeker and sexier than last year's model. The same old style of Corn Flakes even comes in a new box, with a little gimmick inside to attract the kids. And even if there is little or no change in the product, the advertisement tries to convince you otherwise.

Beef and pork producers have recognized this fact and are gearing their advertising toward new products, new packaging and a new approach to health and nutrition, as well as taste. Poultry sales are no longer based on selling a dressed chicken or turkey. They are selling packages of parts, meatloafs and weiners, and pushing chicken in fast food restaurants. Frank Perdue even makes a point of showing a skinny, bleached chicken and then throwing it in the waste can, implying that he has the only nice plump yellow fowl for sale. That little bit of foul play can convince many buyers that all the others are second rate.

In case you haven't noticed, some of your competitors are doing the same thing to you. You and I know that genuine dairy products like real cheese and butter and whole milk are far superior to the phoney margarines, low calorie, low cholesterol, and low saturated fats, artificial cheese (ever wonder what they make it out of?) Imitation dairy "whiteners" for coffee, and the host of other competitors for good honest milk products that assail our good sense.

Maybe it's time we fight back.

Politicians fight the same way. Notice how they constantly compare themselves to their opponents. They rarely have a really superior quality of their own to tout, so they emphasize the shortcomings of their opponents. I wish they would spend more time telling us about their own plans, accomplishments and good qualities. I would rather weigh the positive with the positive than to try to judge a candidate against his many faults. But I suppose it gets votes, so that's all that matters.

The same goes for slick advertising of all products. If it sells, say it over and over, even if it becomes trite and laughable.

Dairying is still a basic and fundamental industry, essential to the survival of agriculture as well as the nation. But it is fragmented into thousands of individual producers. Each one is still a small voice. Our tactic in competing with other food products cannot be a small, individual effort. It must be a well organized and cooperative effort. It must attract attention, and it must be positive.

It must above all apply new methods, new products based on milk, more outlets that attract attention and make our products more available. There's nothing more frustrating than finding no milk or ice cream available on a hot day in the park, the shopping mall or the fair grounds.

And we really don't need to sell dairy products to other dairymen. Once we get our act together, we must sell our milk, ice cream, cheese and other real good stuff to the millions of consumers who never saw a farm or a cow, much less work with them. And it will have to be better, tastier, prettier and even a little sexier than the competition!

Moisture Adequate, Harvest Nearly Complete In Pa.

HARRISBURG – Four days were rated suitable for fieldwork across the state for the week ending Oct. 19 according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service. Major activities included harvesting soybeans, corn grain, corn silage, apples, grapes, potatoes and other vegetables; making hay and haylage; fall planting of wheat, barley and alfalfa hay; and fall plowing.

Topsoil moisture supplies were rated short by 7 percent of the reporters, adequate by 78 percent and surplus by 15 percent. In the northern region, moisture supplies were rated 67 percent adequate and 33 percent surplus; the central region was rated 89 percent adequate and 11 percent surplus; and the southern region was rated 22 percent short and 78 percent adequate.

The Commonwealth's apple harvest was 82 percent complete compared to 83 percent last year at this time. The grape harvest was 92 percent complete, slightly behind last year's 94 percent.

By the end of the week seven percent of the corn crop was still in the dent stage, 69 percent was mature and 24 percent was harvested. This compares to the five-year average of 13 percent dent, 63 percent mature and 24 percent harvested. The condition of the corn crop was rated 26 percent excellent, 48 percent good, 20 percent fair and six percent poor. The harvest of corn silage progressed to 89 percent complete compared to 92 percent last year.

The soybean crop was rated 27 percent excellent, 49 percent good, 16 percent fair and eight percent poor. The reporters estimated that 23 percent of the soybean crop was harvested, compared with 21 percent harvested last year at the same time.

The potato harvest was 91 percent complete compared to 96 percent last year. Harvesting rates of 81, 96 and 98 percent were reported for the northern, central and southern regions, respectively.

By week's end 91 percent of the crop acreage was plowed, slightly behind last year's progress of 93 percent. The barley crop was equal to last year's rate of 94 percent planted, while the wheat crop was up one point at 81 percent planted.

The fourth cutting of alfalfa hay was 82 percent complete, ahead of last year's 78 percent. The quality of hay made was rated good by 29 percent of the reporters, fair by 52 percent and poor by 19 percent. The amount of feed being obtained from pastures was rated above average by eight percent, average by 75 percent and below average by 17 percent.

Reports from nine sales for the week of Oct. 15 to 22 showed 461 head averaging $1,468.08. These sales were held in New York, Ohio, Missouri, North Dakota, Virginia, Idaho, Texas and Canada. The top prices at the sales ranged from $27,840 to $1,300. Here is a brief look at the results of these sales.

BROWN SWISS

The 50TH EASTERN BREEDERS SALE held in New York averaged $1,036 on 33 head. This sale has the distinction of being the oldest continuous Brown Swiss sale in the country.

A September freshening 2-year-old cow sired by Bridge View Elegant Diamond topped the sale with a bid of $1,650.

Her dam, sired by Lar-Le Stretch Titan, scored VG-88. She produced a top record of 12,700 pounds of milk with a 4.1 test in 309 days. The next dam produced a best record of 15,633 pounds of milk.

Selling for the second high price of $1,575 was a 5-year-old daughter of West Lawn Stretch Improver. Classified VG-86, her record in progress stands at 12, 969 pounds of milk with a 4.6 test in 296 days. Her dam, by Venture's Sunny Bruce, classified VG-86. She produced a top record of 16,500 pounds of milk with a 4.5 test in 361 days.

Tom Whittaker auctioneered the sale and Wayne Sliker served as the sale manager and announcer.

The MEADOW VIEW SALE held in Ontario averaged $1,561.48 on 77 head. The young animals averaged around the $700 mark. All dollar values have been converted to American dollars values.

The top animal, a 6-year-old cow sold for $6,960. She was sired by West Lawn Stretch Improver. During her first four lactations she averaged 22,000 pounds of milk. Her production ranged from 20,000 to 23,000 pounds of milk. Her test for these lactations averaged 4.2 percent.

She was confirmed safe in calf to Meadow View Dagger and will freshen in February.

Her dam produced records over 20,000 pounds of milk and a maternal sister's top production stands at 30,000 pounds of milk.

A 4 year old sold for the second high price of the sale, $3,550. Sired by Norvic Telstar, she classified Very Good and will freshen in early November to Ash Hollow Tammys Target. Her best effort stands at 20,000 pounds of milk with a 4.4 fat test and a 3.8 protein test.

Her dam classified VG-88 and produced a top record over 18,000 pounds of milk.

Selling at the $3,480 mark was an Excellent Combination daughter. The 3 year old is projected for 24,000 pounds of milk for her current lactation.

The Meadow View herd belonged to Bernard Monson of Iowa. Monson entered the buyout program and dispersed his herd in Canada. The sale ad stipulated: All females must be sold to foreign buyers.

The sale was managed by the Ontario Brown Swiss Club, Ken Bender president and sale chairman. Darrell Worden was the auctioneer.

GUERNSEY

The HAMHURST FARM DISPERSAL held in Virginia averaged $715.50 on 80 head. A 3-year-old daughter of Lone Palm Jeans Jay sold for $2,500 to top the sale. During her first lactation she completed a record of 19,137 pounds of milk, 757 pounds of fat and 673 pounds of protein in 418 days. In her current lactation, she produced 3,714 pounds of milk and 140 pounds of fat in 61 days.

The second highest price, $1,500, came on a 2-year-old daughter of Lone Palm Telstar Jubilee. She is projected at 13,000 pounds of milk for her first lactation. Her dam, sired by Metzger Top Roe, produced 12,923 pounds of milk and 594 pounds of fat in 305 days.

John Merryman served as the auctioneer and the Merryman Company managed the sale. R.A. McLaughlin read pedigrees.

JERSEY

The NORTHERN OHIO MILK-FOUNDATION SALE averaged $924 on 30 head. The top animal, a bred heifer, sold for $1,900. She was due at sale time to Quicksilver Magic of Ogston.

Sired by Top Brass, she is out of a Nev-R-Dun Terrific Temptation dam. The dam's best effort stands at 14,680 pounds of milk and 637 pounds of fat for a 4.3 test. Her granddam produced records which tested between 5.5 and 5.8 percent.

A price of $1,750 was realized on the second high animal, a bred heifer sired by Quicksilver Magic of Ogston and due to Top Brass.

The dam, sired by Starn General, produced a top record of 13,910 pounds of milk and 604 pounds of fat in 305 days. The granddam produced records ranging between 5.4 and 6.1 percent fat.

Buyers and sellers of this year's sale are eligible for a bonus. The sale offers a premium of 1 percent of the sale's gross to the buyer and seller of the animal which produces the highest 4 percent fat corrected record. This practice insures high testing consignments for future sales.

Steve Andrews auctioneered the sale. Ohio Jersey District 4 and 7 sponsored the sale.

The HEART OF THE OZARK SALE held in Missouri averaged $705 on 45 lots. The cows averaged over $1,000. A 3-year-old daughter of a homebred Favorite Saint son topped the sale with a bid of $1,300. She sold fresh and open. On the day of the sale she produced 60 pounds of milk. Her dam, sired by Lotus Duke, is producing 2,621 pounds of milk and 156 pounds of fat over herdmates.

The top bred heifer sold for $775. Sired by A-Nine Call Me Great, she was bred to El-Mac Big Mac to freshen at sale time.

Her dam classified Excellent and was sired by Prince Royal Julius. Her top M.E. record stands at 12,128 pounds of milk and 599 pounds of fat.

This was the first state sale in two years. The sale was restarted due to a demand for Jersey cattle.

Reg Kelly auctioneered the sale and the Missouri Jersey Cattle Club managed the sale.

HOLSTEIN

The IDAHO FALL CONVENTION SALE averaged $1,189.84 on 32 head. The high bid of the day, $2,550, came on a March heifer sired by Valiant. Her dam, a Glen Valley Star daughter, classified VG-85 and produced a top record of 28,000 pounds of milk and 1,108 pounds of fat in 365 days.

The next dam scored Excellent and produced a top record of 23,170 milk and 737 fat. The next three dams classified Very Good with over 100,000 pounds of milk lifetime.

Selling for the second best price of the sale, $2,300, was a December 1985 Valiant daughter. Her dam, an Elevation daughter, classified Excellent and produced a best effort of 31,520 milk and 1,217 fat on a 3x schedule. Her cow index stands at plus 745 milk and plus 37 fat. The next dam produced a lifetime record of 106,640 pounds of milk in 1,728 days.

James Ellis, Area 4 manager for the Holstein Association, auctioneered the sale and James Henderson read pedigrees. The Idaho Holstein Association managed the sale.

The TEXAS 150TH SELLABRATION SALE averaged $2,696.91 on 46 head. A bid of $5,600 on an April 1986 heifer topped the sale. Sired by Ned Boy, she is out of a 91 point Mars Tony dam.

Consignments came from nine states.

Steve Massey auctioneered and managed the sale and the Texas Holstein Association sponsored the sale.

"I Had An Embarrassing Problem."

"It was something I didn't even want to talk about. But now that the problem is solved, I'll tell you. It was a terrible case of raw, cracked teats and udder. You can imagine how that made me feel, especially since I had been number one in the herd. I was miserable!

"Then the dairyman—bless his heart—treated me with Udder Butter.™ You know, the easy-spreading, long-lasting unguent from the folks at Corona. Soon my teats and udder were smooth, moist and comfortable again. That's because Udder Butter is the ointment that combines an effective antiseptic with lanolin and other fine lubricants. "Udder Butter fights the growth of bacteria, too, and it's good for sun and windburned muzzle, cuts, wounds and abrasions for all animals. Now I get routine treatments with Udder Butter, so my teats and udder stay smooth and healthy.

"You know, I thought all teat-and-udder preparations had a harsh chemical odor, and were hard to wash off at milking time. But not Udder Butter! Thanks to its self-emulsifying formula, it washes right off with warm soapy water. And it has a refreshing vanilla aroma, so it's pleasant to use.

"Now I'm telling all my sisters to ask their dairyman to get Udder Butter. Whether it's the 7 ounce tube, the 25 ounce tub or the 7 pound pail, as long as it's Udder Butter, it's a container of contentment!"

CORONA® People who care for animals depend on it.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

Demand Pull

Increasing demand and decreasing production continue to be reflected in September milk checks. Higher butter and cheese prices boosted the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series to $11.55 in September. That was 22 cents better than August and 57 cents better than last May. For what it's worth, it's the first time it has been over the support price since May 1985. Along with the increasing demand and price for butter and cheese, fluid milk sales are increasing in most markets around the country.

We expect some increases in September over August with the opening of schools but here in Order 2 there was a 12 million pound or a 3 percent increase in fluid sales over last September. If you add to that a two percent cut in production in Order 2 over last year you get a Class I utilization of 43.6.

Something you haven't seen since October 1984 during the diversion program.

It all adds up to a uniform or blend price of $12.79 for September in Order 2. That's 33 cents more than August and 42 cents more than last September. Your Louisville Plan pay back was nine cents more in September over August but that still gives you 24 cents more from higher prices and better Class I utilization. Adding that to the 24 cent gain you made in August you can say the market has improved 48 cents in the last two months. Compare that to a drop of 65 cents from January to June and you can see what a turn around the market has made.

More Coming

However, that's not the end – there's more coming. The continuing increases in demand are fooling the predictors who couldn't believe that the 3 anf 4 percent increases in commercial disappearance in 1984 and 1985 could be sustained in 1986 but the figures for the first eight months of this year show another 3.4 percent jump. All of that in spite of the giveaways that included 447 million pounds of cheese and 119 million pounds of butter just in 1985 alone and it's continuing at the same rate in 1986.

It's difficult to know how much the giveaways replaced commercial sales but estimates go from 150 to 270 million pounds for the 447 million pounds of cheese distributed. In addition, Commodity Credit Corporation has been selling butter from its storage stock for two months and, believe it or not, for the first time in 10 years, sold back 80,000 pounds of Grade A non-fat dry milk that was not for animal feed.

So, the best predictions last Spring had the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series peaking this Fall at $11.68 and it looks like we can make it but even at the current M-W we're looking at Class I prices in November that are 73 cents better than last year. And when you take off the Gramm-Rudman assessment of 12 cents starting with October's milk you should see another 50 cent increase in your milk check before the end of the year.

Opportunity Ahead

With all this tightening of market supplies of milk and the increasing consumer demand for dairy products the opportunity for negotiating even higher prices with Order 2 handlers should be apparent to all producers. Nearly every other Federal Milk Marketing Order in the country has been doing it for almost 30 years but not in Order 2.

When Federal Orders were established in 1938 the purpose was to guarantee an adequate supply of fluid milk for consumers with the pricing left to the producers. That's right. Federal Orders are written by producers to regulate handlers but somewhere in the last 30 years you've forgotten the goals while you were busy trying to use hard work and long hours to replace marketing skill.

There's a lot of similarity in the pricing formulas in milk marketing orders. They set the price for Class II milk on the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series because that's the only unregulated price for milk used to make dairy products. Then they add a "Class I differential" to the M-W price and call that the Class I price. Originally the "differential" was the cost of moving milk from Wisconsin to the marketing area but they don't represent anything anymore.

Basically the strategy in pricing was to get all the market would bear in the Class I price and sell the remainder as Class II for what it would bring for butter, powder and cheese. In any case, the Class I price in Federal Orders was definitely a minimum price that handlers must pay but producers were expected to negotiate higher prices to get "all that the market would bear."

The fact that Order 2 producers never negotiated a Class I price with handlers is evident now in the prices paid in other markets. For September milk in Order 2 the Class I price was $13.61, the minimum provided by the order.

In Pittsburgh the Federal Order minimum price for September was $13.38 but the producers negotiated an 80 cent premium so the handlers paid $14.18 for Class I milk. In Chicago the minimum Class I price was $12.73 but the producers asked for and got a $1.61 increase so the price was $14.34 to the handlers. Why $1.61 in Chicago and only 80 cents in Pittsburgh? Maybe that's all that market conditions warranted in each area but they both got more than the minimum price.

Looking at all the Federal Orders where producers negotiate over order Class I prices the average for October will be 86 cents. That's six cents more than August and September, another indication of tightening milk supplies.

Right here in Order 2 the minimum Class I price has gone from a low of $13.39 in April to $14.10 in November this year. That's a difference of 71 cents a hundred in seven months. Consumers in New York and the rest of the marketing area drink about the same amount of fluid milk every month. They don't even know that you're getting three or four cents a quart less in the Spring than in the Fall. They certainly don't know that the New York dealers are paying less to their producers than the Pittsburgh dealers.

What I'm trying to show is that Class I prices set by Federal Orders are minimums and that in most other areas producers have negotiated over order premiums anywhere from $2.16 in Carbondale, Illinois and St. Louis, Missouri to 38 cents in Houston, Texas and Seattle, Washington. It's so common in all other markets in the country that it's expected from producers.

Even during the years of record high national milk production and record high government purchases of dairy products to support milk prices, over order premiums on Class I milk were negotiated in most markets.

Now you have a situation developing in Order 2 where milk supplies are tightening mainly because of increasing demand. Those minimum Federal Order prices are not rising fast enough because they're tied to butter, powder and cheese prices. So, why not ask for over-order premiums from the handlers on their Class I sales?

As long as all producers ask for the same premium and it is paid by all the handlers the sytem will work here as it does in other areas. All you have to do is forget all of your prejudices and join one organization without any dues or assessments that will negotiate higher prices with handlers.

Now is your chance.

Americana Sale Averages $11,970

DEFOREST, Wis. – The fourth Americana Sale, sponsored by American Breeders Service, featured 67 purebred Holstein cows and heifers that were sired by 21 ABS bulls and consigned by breeders in 19 states. They averaged $11,970.

The sale, held in the Dane County Coliseum during the World Dairy Expo, drew a crowd of 5,000 people. Guests and bidders came from just about every state in the nation plus over 50 foreign countries.

Long-Haven Valiant Sally, Very Good, consigned by Carlos and Doug Long of Long-Haven Farms, Clayton, Mich., established a new record price for Expo cattle sales when she sold to Golden Oaks Farm, Wauconda, Ill. for $350,000.

Sally, the number one cow on the Holstein Association's Premier Performer List is also the top daughter of the ABS bull S-W-D Valiant, for milk, fat and protein. As a 3 year old she produced 40,022 pounds of milk testing 4.6 percent for 1,823 pounds of fat and 1,428 pounds of protein.

A second Valiant daughter Tex-Stein Valiant Octavia, VG-86, consigned by Robert E. Steinberger Sr., Windthorst, Texas brought $56,000 from Norman Meissner, Chili, Wis.

Lekker Milkmaster Dash-ET, VG-88, a 4-year-old daughter of Gil-Tex-B Milkmaster sold to Merit Holsteins, Columbus, Wis. for $47,000. She was consigned by L and M Holsteins also of Columbus.

A 15-month-old daughter of Sterk RA Ijon was the top selling heifer at $15,000. Plushanski Ijon Francine, consigned by Charles Plushanski, Kutztown, Pa., sold to Roy Homan and Ron Osofsky of Pine Plains, N.Y.

One of the sale features was a group of daughters of Tri-Day Valiant Gold, the highest Total Performance Index bull alive. These eight heifer calves ranging in age from seven to ten months, brought an average price of $3,800 for eight different consignors.

Twenty-two of the 67 lots were sold for export to Canada and other foreign countries.

the sale day. Her dam is a Very Good Astronaut King daughter with a top record of 25,350 pounds of milk and 1,085 pounds of fat.

The next dam classified VG-86 with a best effort of 25,480 pounds of milk and 1,146 pounds of fat for a 4.5 test.

Second high price of the sale, $1,650, came on a 4-year-old daughter of Kit Builder. She is due at the end of October to Poverty Hollow Milestone. Her best record stands at 15,275 pounds of milk and 627 pounds of fat. The dam's produced a high record of 23,348 pounds of milk and 919 pounds of fat.

Henry Bartel managed and auctioneered the sale. Bartel noted the sale prices were down due to the depressed farm economy. Most farmers are grain farmers and the moisture and wet grains have depressed prices, he said.

Indiana County 4-H Dairy Banquet Held

INDIANA — Indiana County 4-H dairy clubs met recently at the Trinity United Methodist Church in Indiana for their annual recognition banquet.

Brett Nesbit, a member of the Northern Dairy Club, received the dairy judging award for the county. Bret Brumbaugh, a representitive of the trophy sponsor Milk Marketing Inc., presented the award.

Norma Andrie won the outstanding senior dairy award with the junior title going to Heath Winsheimer. Charles Lockhart, president of the Indiana County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, presented the award.

As part of the evening's entertainment, Holly Edwards gave her speech, "Farming — a thing of the past." Heath Winsheimer gave her presentation, "Dehorn now — prevent problems later." Both dairy club members' presentations garnered honors this summer at the Penn State 4-H Achievement Days.

Carol and Gene Schurman, Indiana County 4-H and agricultural agents respectively, gave a slide presentation reviewing the past year's activities.

The group heard from Leigh Ann Kimmel, Indiana County dairy princess, and Dave Belford, the 1986 4-H king.

Dave noted that his experiences throughout the year have been educational. Being a horse club member, David had never been exposed to all the 4-H activities in the county before he became king. "Now I can say that I have learned to show a dairy animal, even though I don't understand why you show a cow backwards," he said.

Pork Checkoff

program was 29 percent, which yielded just under $55,000 on the total of $189,000 checked off last year.

"So Pennsylvania itself will probably only realize in the neighborhood of $20,000 more," says Wingert, pointing out that refund requests are expected to chip away at the projected $82,500.

Producers have 30 days from the date of sale to apply for a refund. Within 24 to 30 months after the program goes in force, producers will vote on the checkoff, but refund requests will be honored regardless of the outcome of the referendum, says Wingert.

Funds will be targeted only for promotion and research; no checkoff money will be used to organize additional pork councils or fund legislative activities.

Although the program emphasizes pork promotion, Wingert urges producers to be patient. "There seems to be a perception that there's all kinds of dollars now and all kinds of promotion, and that our prices will increase significantly, but you just can't see results overnight," Wingert cautions.

Herbert Schick, Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council's secretary-treasurer, agrees, pointing out that producers should not expect miracles from the projected $18 million in national checkoff funds to be raised annually. "It sounds like a lot of money, but when you talk advertising it's still really a drop in the bucket." Nevertheless, says Schick, it's a good start.

Schick, who heads PPPC's promotion committee for 1986, reviewed some of the committee's activities for the current year. Included were one-minute radio advertisements for pork aired during every other Phillies baseball game. Currently underway is an October Pork Fest promotion, involving radio stations in the eastern half of the state. Cost of the above two programs came to $33,000 and $20,000, respectively.

Recently the pork council signed an advertising contract with a radio show entitled "Dining Around," aired on Philadelphia's WCAU. "We're going to try to get more pork used in the restaurants," says Schick, adding that this contract will carry over into 1987.

In the realm of research, Pennsylvania's voluntary checkoff has also funded studies at Penn State and the University of Pennsylvania. This year the council, in cooperation with Iowa and NPPC, contributed $2,000 to the development of a merchandizing manual directed at chain stores.

"The state did real well on a voluntary basis," observes Schick. "If it wasn't for that, a lot of these (producers) wouldn't even be in the hog business today. We have a good product, but we have to go out and sell it."

Beef Checkoff Causes Confusion

The idea is good, but the execution leaves something to be desired. That seems to be the concensus among those responsible for collecting beef checkoff funds.

Mandated by Farm Bill '85's Beef Promotion and Research Act, the $1-per-head checkoff has been in force since Oct. 1. The present procedure calls for the buyer of the cattle to deduct $1 on each head from the seller's proceeds and send it to the Pennsylvania Beef Council. The money is then used for beef promotion at the state and national level.

The program guards against multiple assessments by exempting cattle from reassessment if they are resold within 10 days of the first purchase. Much of the current confusion regarding the program seems to center on the exemption form called the "Certificate of Non-Producer Status," notes the Beef Council's executive director, Robert Coleman.

"It's set up so that the auctions never have to fill out these exemption forms," says Coleman. "They are required to collect $1 (per head) unless they receive an exemption form from the consignor."

When a producer sells his cattle through auction, the auction gives him a bill of sale and then sends his $1 to the council. Monthly checkoff receipts are due on the 15th of the following month.

Coleman stresses, however, that if the auction refuses to collect checkoff funds, the producer is still obligated to pay the dollar on each head that he sold through that auction.

If a dealer buys the cattle and resells them within 10 days, it's the dealer's responsibility to supply the new buyer with an exemption form instead of an additional dollar.

In an effort to clarify the program, the Beef Council sent examples of a number of buy-sell transactions to the state's auctions, livestock dealers and packers this week, says Coleman.

Coleman said the current system of keeping records of exemptions is being evaluated by the National Cattlemen's Association's Beef Promotion and Research Board executive committee. He added that the council is seeking constructive comments on the collection procedure from those involved in livestock marketing. Comments will then be referred to national board chairman, JoAnn Smith.

Comments should be referred to Pennsylvania Beef Council, 4714 Orchard St., Harrisburg, PA 17109. Phone: 717-545-6000.

A TESTIMONY FROM ONE OF OUR CUSTOMERS

"I purchased a Snatcher in the fall of 1985. We installed it below the TMR Mixer Unit. I am using a mixture of corn silage, haylage and ground ear corn The Snatcher is installed above the conveyor that carries feed to the feed bunk It is surprising the amount of metal we have collected since using the Snatcher It has picked up nails, wire, springs and pieces of metal My reason for purchasing the Snatcher was that I lost a high priced first calf heifer due to metal in the Spring of 1985 Since using the Snatcher we have had no problems with hardware in our cattle Yours, D Witmer, Lancaster Co , PA

Mr. Witmer is considered a good dairyman, but discovered that he still needed protection against metal. We must again claim that this is a very cheap type of insurance!

We also have Magnetic Bars covered with Stainless Steel, for use where the Snatcher does not apply.

Gramm-Rudman Revoked For 1987

WASHINGTON — Congress met budgetary goals at the end of last week and revoked Gramm-Rudman assessments for farmers in 1987, an ASCS official explained.

However, crop benefit payments on the 1986 harvest will continue to be cut by the 4.3 percent during 1987, according to Dave Hall, director of the budget division for ASCS. This rate was established by Gramm-Rudman for fiscal year 1986 to meet the budget deficit goal, Hall noted.

He added that the 12 cents per hundredweight of milk which dairy farmers were assessed will be dropped; no additional assessment will be levied.

Late last week Congress and the administration worked out a budget that met the target deficit of $144 billion, Hall said. This target triggered the rescinding of the Gramm-Rudman assessments for farmers, he added.

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON — An estimated 11,700 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally inspected plants during the week ending Oct. 4, as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1 through Oct. 4 is an estimated 801,400 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. For the two-week period ending Oct. 11, the government purchased 241,250 pounds of meat. The cumulative purchases, reported bi-weekly as of Oct. 11, total 297.5 million pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1 to Oct. 18 totaled an estimated 38,035 head. An estimated 1,032 were exported during the week ending Oct. 18.

conducted as part of the Cooperative Research Farms program. The Agway research will include a complete lactation period under farm conditions to determine the practical aspects of providing cows with BST.

BST falls under the jurisdiction of the Food & Drug Administration and must be proved safe and effective under strict registration processes.

NEW FEED PATENTS GRANTED

Agway was granted two new patents in early October on methods used to measure and regula'e nonstructural carbohydrates in dairy feeds. One patent covers a method for regulating types of carbohydrates, and the other a method for measuring types of carbohydrates. The procedure involves the use of natural feed ingredients measured for nonstructural carbohydrate content.

The patented process is the result of several years of study by Agway's dairy research team as part of the Cooperative Research Farms program. Milk production was increased by 10% and feed efficiency was improved by 13% ir the research studies.

Judy Weidman Turns Century-Old 'Unwanted' Home Into Show Place

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

MOUNT JOY — Over 900 people visited the Weidman House near Mount Joy last weekend and enjoyed the gracious 100-year-old home filled with antiques and additions designed for modern living.

Judy Weidman, who lives there with two of her three children, agreed to open her home as one of the stops on the annual Lancaster County Tour, sponsored by the Lancaster County Art Association.

She said, "It was a lot of fun, especially when people say nice things about your house." And say nice things they did. Judy's friend, artist Arlene Fisher, was displaying her art in a room newly made from a garage and said, "The people really liked the house. They made lots of nice comments to me."

Judy added, "It was a nice group of people — they were all so nice. I wasn't a bit nervous about opening my house, but it flabergasted me that people liked the house so much."

She recalled that she and her late husband, Abe, purchaszed the house 24 years ago when "nobody wanted it. Young couples weren't buying old homes then." It had been a tenant house for a farm, and Judy laughs, "Everything's so crooked." She said she'd like to do some research to learn more about the home when time permits.

Loving care and lots of work through the years has transformed the house. Judy says there were no cupboards in the kitchen when they purchased it, and they bought a complete kitchen which had been on display. It fit perfectly, and continues to be serviceable and attractive.

Visitors were treated to an attractively decorated porch on the side of the Weidman House. Antiques are featured throughout the house.

Judy Weidman stands before the John Eby clock which dominates the dining room of the home. The clock has been passed down in the family since 1790, and has the names of all those who owned it inside the case.

As they walked through the home, tour-goers were treated to a comfortable home, featuring lovely needlework done by Judy and antiques accumulated through the years. Of special interest is a John Eby clock, made by the Manheim clockmaker and passed down through the family since 1790. Judy says she has been told there are only two clocks like it, and the names of family members who have owned it are written on the back of the case.

A newly-added dining room and sun porch, decorated by Judy, drew lots of attention, but the deck and hot tub overlooking surrounding fields also drew the visitors interest.

A unique feature of the house is a family room located in the "old ground cellar," with beautifully pointed stone walls. Judy recalls that the cellar was so bad she didn't even like to go into it, but it has been transformed swan-like into a cozy family room with a raised fireplace. It is a favorite gathering place for visitors.

The most recent project for Judy was turning the garage into a sitting room. That was finished just two days before the 900 guests appeared. Judy comments that the hardest part of opening her home for the tour was getting ready, giving complete attention to every detail. She said they washed windows, curtains, and spent hours on yard work to have the home in near-perfect shape for the visitors.

A special treat for those who visited was a small taste of strawberry daiquiries, a specialty developed by Judy and now being offered for sale by Stauffers of Kissel Hill and Ridgeview Dairies. Judy says she can't remember how she concocted the first daiquiri mix, but it has been a favorite for about two years and she decided to try marketing it. The frozen mixture requires only the addition of ginger ale to make a delicious, refreshing non-alcoholic drink. Judy is enjoying the prospect of marketing the product, and is developing a peach daiquiri recipe along the same lines.

Ever energetic, Judy has also developed the "Weidman House Sampler," a cookbook featuring the most favorite foods she has served over the years. Having sold over 3,000 cookbooks to date, Judy has now written a "Weidman House Supplement," with additional recipes. She carefully acknowledges the friends from whom she received the recipes, saying, "I put in who gave the recipe to me, but I don't know where they came from."

The best part of the cookbook, Judy believes, is that the recipes are simple. "The recipes are all excellent and easy to do, with things you have in your kitchen. They are no-fail. They are time tested recipes," she explains. In addition to enjoying selling the cookbook, Judy says, "It's nice to have all my recipes in one spot." They are sold in several area stores.

One of Judy's hobbies, begun before her husband Abe died three years ago, is hosting small dinner parties. She said the tradition of hosting colonial dinners actually began when they returned from Colonial Williamsburg and invited some friends to come to dinner and wear colonial garb. As members of the Donegal Presbyterian Church, most had appropriate clothing readily available.

Her menus are simple when she entertains, featuring such main courses as chicken cordon bleu, filet, roast pork, and turkey. She makes all her food from scratch, and enjoys purchasing her food from Central Market in Lancaster. About the markets she says, "We are so lucky in Lancaster County. The produce is so fresh." She usually shops early and enjoys every moment, saying, "The people are so great. I just love it.

Judy says, "I have always enjoyed cooking and having company. I often say I do it just to get my house in shape." When she entertains now she usually has the help of son Chip, 23, and daughter, Jodi, 18, who live at home, as well as daughter Jill, 24, who lives very close by.

Judy is always looking to the future, and has many ideas to keep her busy. She said she often feels she would like to run a cooking school, and would especially like to offer cooking classes to young girls on how to give successful dinner parties. She said, "It took me years to learn what could be done ahead of time."

She says by far the most important ingredient for success at entertaining is organization. "The key to success is being really organized. Things go so well when you are really organized." Nevertheless, she acknowledges, "There are some things that cannot be done until the last minute. It takes a lot of time to prepare for a party." She says it's always a mistake to try to put too many things into a short amount of time.

If she taught such a course she would use her cookbook, because of the simplicity of the recipes. Judy says, "Just because it's simple doesn't mean it is isn't good. I am not a gourmet cook."

Teaching men's cooking classes is another idea that holds appeal for Judy.

Another venture Judy has considered is having a Bed and Breakfast in her home, something she says she may consider more seriously once her children are gone. However, she also makes it clear that she enjoys having the children home, and will be lonely when the last one leaves.

Although she spends a lot of time in her home, Judy also is a big supporter of daughter Jodi who played in the district tennis playoffs this week. She likes to watch Jodi play, even though she professes to have no athletic skill herself. Son Chip helps Jodi prepare for games by hitting balls for her.

Judy's preparation of food begins long before she plans a meal in the kitchen. She works with her family in preparing foods all summer. She says, "We have a family garden. I freeze lots of corn with my two sisters-in-law and mother-in-law. We work at it for whole days." She also likes to prepare lots of applesauce from early apples, and makes it special by adding some dried apricots while cooking the apples.

She adds, "Grandma Weidman makes all my jelly."

She is a little embarrassed to talk about her herb garden, apologizing, "I have only four herbs, thyme, basil, Italian parsley and mint." Nevertheless, she enjoys having them on hand.

Judy's home reflects her love of family and entertaining friends. It offered a relaxing interlude for participants in the tour, and a look at a "country way of life".

Judy works in the pantry which she added. She prepares chicken cordon bleu, one of her favorite main dishes.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

One word. There is one word that, in essence, captures all that is Fall: tang in the crisp air, spotless clear blue sky, red and yellow leaves coloring the hillsides and fencerows, woodsmoke hanging in the air, and a bright, white harvest moon so near you could almost reach up and pick it from the sky.

Cider. That's the word.

There are basically two ways to obtain this classic seasonal liquid.

You can, obviously, run down to your nearest retail market and buy up a supply.

Or you can squeeze your own.

Easier said than done. Apples don't squeeze with the same ease of something like an orange or a grapefruit. In fact, try to flatten an apple and you'll probably end up with a handful of applesauce. Tasty. But not cider.

What you need is a good, sturdy, old-fashioned cider press.

Now, mind you, this piece of equipment is not something the size of a Cuisinart. It's more like 6 feet long, 4 feet high, and comes with a variety of old cast iron hardware and sturdy, round baskets made of wood slats for holding the chopped bits of apple for pressing.

Nor does one store a cider press in the back corner of the kitchen cupboard. Ours — an ancient model acquired long, long ago by the farmer — spends its life mostly ignored in a dusty corner of the barn. About once every ten years, it is resurrected on a glorious Sunday afternoon for a sort of ceremony which reinforces the farm roots in both our ancestral pasts.

This ritual begins on our knees.

Under trees colored with red and yellow apples, we crawl through dried grass and crunchy leaves, gathering "drops." Material for this most recent cider pressing ritual originated under trees owned by generous neighbors whose land we farm, and who graciously allowed us to harvest the fallen jewel-like fruits.

Piece of antiquity that it is, the oaken press with its rusting hardware has no plugs, points, or power. It's life comes from a six-inch-wide umbilical cord, a canvas strip run off the belt-drive of another link to the past, our youngest's lovingly-restored John Deere "B".

With the extra manpower lent by good friends, apples are rinsed and tossed into the clattering machine, a few handfuls at a time, to be run through knives and chopped to bits. Periodically an apple, thrown in as an offering to the noisy knives, catches one on the upswing, and goes flying back out to roll off down the paved driveway.

Two baskets are kept busy, one sliding front to go under the heavy wooden press, while the chopper fills another in preparation. The farmer turns the press, by hand, then adds extra leverage with a special turning tool shaped like a baseball bat, but squared.

And, then amber liquid pours down over the old oak press floor, and cascades into a modern plastic bucket, filling the air with the heady perfume of autumn. Long before the last handful of apples is tossed to the knives, the sloped drive is dangerously slick with chopped apple - like walking on applesauce - and scrubbed, sanitized plastic buckets hold the thick, foamy, coppery-colored juice.

Some is shared, some will be frozen, some will be canned and some incorporated into Grandma's oven-cooled applebutter.

That's not just cider sitting there chilled in the refrigerator.

It's a jug of memories.

Homemade Bread, Biscuits Make Daily Meals Special

Homemade breads and muffins help make an ordinary dinner special. A basket of steaming biscuits or a plump loaf of homemade bread are the perfect complement to a hearty bowl of soup or a full-course dinner.

Survey the recipes below and select one that suits your fancy. You'll find a wide variety in this week's muffin and bread recipes. You may want to try the Applesauce Puffs recipe shared by Charlene Gingrich or Mrs. King's Whole Wheat Bread.

Those with a sweet tooth will probably enjoy the Raspberry Nut Muffins and the Cinnamon-Raisin Swirl Bread.

COTTAGE CHEESE MUFFINS

1½ cups sifted unbleached flour
¼ cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup cornmeal
½ cup stirred whole wheat flour
2 eggs
1 cup low-fat cottage cheee
1 cup buttermilk or 1 cup milk soured with 1 tablespoon vinegar
⅓ cup vegetable oil

Sift together all-purpose flour, sugar, baking powder, and soda. Stir in cornmeal and whole wheat flour. In small bowl, beat eggs; stir in cottage cheese, buttermilk and oil. Mix dry and wet ingredients together, just until dry ingredients are moistened. Bake at 400°F. until browned, about 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 24 muffins.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

½ cup warm water
2 packages dry yeast
1 cup honey
4 cups hot water
4 tablespoons soy oil
4 eggs
12 cups whole wheat flour
1 cup powdered milk
4 teaspoons salt

Put yeast in warm water. In a big bowl, mix honey and water. Beat in soy oil and eggs. When the mixture is cool enough, add yeast. Then add dry ingredients. Mix flour, milk and salt in another bowl while other mixture is cooling. Let rise 3 times to have finer bread. A little blackstrap may also be desired. Makes 5 loaves. Bake at 350°F. for 30 minutes.

RASPBERRY NUT MUFFINS

1 cup fresh red raspberries
½ cup milk
¼ cup oil
1 egg, eaten
1½ cups all-purpose flour
⅔ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped pecans

To freeze berries:

Wash raspberries and pat dry. Place on a cookie sheet and freeze until firm. Store in pint-size freezer bags in freezer until ready to use.

To prepare muffins:

Combine milk, oil and egg. Stir in flour, sugar, baking powder and salt just until moistened. Quickly and gently fold in frozen raspberries and pecans. Fill 12 greased muffin cups two-thirds full.

Bake in 400°F. oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Immediately remove from pan. Cool thoroughly and store in airtight container. Makes 12 muffins.

A hefty slice of homemade bread topped with jam or jelly is the perfect complement to a meal.

CINNAMON-RAISIN SWIRL BREAD

1½ cups milk
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
½ cup butter
1 cup unseasoned mashed potatoes
½ cup very warm water (110 to 115°F.)
2 packages active dry yeast
7½ cups all-purpose flour
1½ cups raisins
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
Granulated sugar

In a small saucepan, heat milk until bubbles form around edge of pan; remove from heat. Add ¼ cup sugar, the salt and ½ cup butter; stir until butter melts; add mashed potatoes; cool to lukewarm.

Sprinkle yeast over water in large mixer bowl; stir to dissolve. Add milk mixture and 3½ cups flour; beat with electric mixer until smooth — 2 minutes. Stir in raisins. Gradually add remaining flour; mix in last by hand until dough is stiff and leaves side of bowl. Turn dough onto lightly floured pastry cloth or board. Knead until smooth and elastic — 10 minutes. Place in greased large bowl; turn dough to bring up greased side. Cover with towel; let rise in warm place, free from drafts, until doubled — 1½ hours.

Mix ½ cup sugar and cinnamon. Turn dough on lightly floured pastry cloth. Roll one half into 16-by-8 inch rectangle. Sprinkle with half of cinnamon-sugar mixture. From narrow side, roll up jelly-roll fashion. Pinch edges and ends together. Tuck ends under.

Place, seam down, in greased 9x5x2¾-inch loaf pan. Brush with 1 tablespoon butter. Cover with towel. Repeat with other half of dough. Let rise in warm place, free from drafts, until sides come to top of pans and tops are rounded — about 1 hour.

Place oven rack in middle of oven. Preheat oven to 375°F. Brush each loaf with rest of butter. Bake 35 to 40 minutes — tops should be well browned. Remove from pan at once; cool slightly on rack, away from drafts. Sprinkle with sugar. Serve warm. Makes 2 loaves.

TOMATO ROLLS

1 cup warm water (105°F. to 115°F.)
2 packages active dry yeast
¾ cup lukewarm tomato sauce
5¾ to 6¼ cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup margarine, melted
2 eggs, at room temperature

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add tomato sauce and 2½ cups flour; beat until smooth. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until bubbly, about 45 minutes.

Add sugar, salt, margarine, and eggs to the sponge and mix well. Stir in enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Punch dough down. Turn out onto floured board and knead lightly for 30 seconds. Divide dough into 30 equal pieces. Form each piece into ball. Place in greased muffin-pan cups. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 375°F. for 12 to 15 minutes or until done. Remove from pans, cool on wire racks.

CORN BREAD

1 cup cornmeal
1 cup flour (part or all whole wheat)
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ cup dry milk powder (optional)
2 beaten eggs
1 cup skim milk
¼ cup oil or melted shortening

Mix together the first five ingredients. Make a well and add eggs, milk and oil. Stir just until smooth. Pour into a greased 9x9-inch pan and bake 25 minutes. Serve hot.

Judy Weidman, Mt. Joy R2, is an excellent cook who enjoys entertaining. Because of her expertise in the kitchen, she has published a cookbook, "The Weidman House Sampler," and shares one of her favorite meat dishes from it. This week's homestead notes, on page B2, features Judy and her beautiful home.

Chicken Cordon Bleu

4 whole chicken breasts, split, skinned and boned
8 slices boiled or baked ham, cut 1/8-inch thick (sometimes slices are large enough to be cut in half, then you'll need only 4 slices)
8 slices Swiss cheese
4 eggs, beaten
Italian bread crumbs
¼ pound butter, softened
1 clove garlic or 1 teaspoon garlic powder

Place chicken breasts (shiny side down) on cutting board, pound lightly. Mince garlic and add to softened butter. Spread on chicken breasts. Put slice of ham on chicken breast, then slice of Swiss cheese. (If slices of cheese are large, fold in half.) Roll, starting at small end, roll up and tuck in sides as best you can.

Place in a long pan, refrigerate at least 2 hours. Prepare beaten eggs. Dip chicken in Italian bread crumbs, then in egg and once again in bread crumbs. Grease a 13x9-inch pan and place the chicken in the pan. Bake at 350°F. for 45 to 50 minutes, turning once. Cordon Bleu may be frozen. Thaw before baking, then bake in the same manner.

ANSWER - Gail Redheffer Stull, Willow Street, asked how to cook fresh mushrooms so they retain their natural color. Thanks go to Mrs. Robert L. Lohr, Gettysburg, who shared the following advice from the 1987 Hagerstown Town and Country Almanac: "Add a teaspoon of lemon juice to each quarter pound of butter or margarine when sauteeing mushrooms. It will keep them firm and white and add a marvelous flavor."

Nina: Columbus's Favorite Ship

WASHINGTON — Her name, rarely mentioned apart from Santa Maria and Pinta, is immortal in the annuals of exploration: Nina – Little Girl.

She was Christopher Columbus's favorite ship. Among the most advanced of her day, she proved sea-kindly and swift on his first voyage to the New World. And, after his flagship, Santa Maria, ran aground on Christmas Day, 1492, she carried the discoverer through a fierce mid-Atlantic winter storm safely and triumphantly home to Spain.

What happened to Nina after that famous first voyage? What did she look like? For nearly 500 years, her appearance has been assumed from early 16th-century drawings. Little is known about the Spanish caravels of discovery.

Information in Seville

Searching for information on the early Spanish shipping system in Spain's Archive of the Indies in Seville, historian Eugene Lyon examined a 400-page bundle of documents called the Libro de Armadas. It described the sending of several caravel fleets to the New World between 1495 and 1500.

"When I saw her name on the aged paper before me, I did not immediately grasp its significance," Lyon, an expert in old Spanish documents, reports in the November National Geographic.

"Nina, also known as Santa Clara." Could this be Columbus's Little Girl? She was nicknamed Nina because she was first the property of Juan Nino. She was formally Santa Clara, after the patron saint of the town (Moguer) where she was built.

The bundle of documents included details of her cargo, sails, rigging, and other equipment in 1498, the year of Columbus's third voyage to the New World. Nina, the papers revealed, had four masts, instead of two or three as has always been depicted.

Most historians, including Lyon, believe the first- and second-voyage Ninas were one and the same. A five-year investigation by National Geographic magazine, also reported in its November issue, has concluded that Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria first anchored in the New World at Samana Cay in the Bahamas in 1492.

On the second voyage, which left Spain in September 1493, Nina was among the flotilla of 17 vessels. Convinced that Cuba was the Asia he sought, Columbus "aboard the caravel Nina, also known as Santa Clara," on June 12, 1494, required all his crews to swear to their belief about reaching the Asian mainland.

Damaged Off Hispaniola

In August 1495, sturdy Nina was badly damaged in a hurricane off the island of Hispaniola (now Haiti and the Dominican Republic). The documents mention "Nina, which was remade in the Indies." On her return to Spain in 1496, Nina brought back New World goods: gold, wood, cotton, and a barrel of sand. Columbus thought the sand was a precious ore.

Next, apparently without Columbus's approval, Nina was sent to Rome on a commercial voyage in 1497 and was hijacked off the coast of Sardinia by a French pirate. The crew, through bribery, escaped and returned Nina safely to Spain. An angry Columbus recovered her.

Finally preparing for his third voyage to the New World, Columbus decided to send Nina and sister ship Santa Cruz ahead to Hispaniola in early February 1498 with much-needed supplies. To pay his seamen, the documents disclose, Columbus used funds he was to have taken to Hispaniola, hoping to balance the books with gold to be found there.

Nina received new sails, a new 200-pound anchor, and cartloads of planking. Caulkers worked 40 days on her deck and hull.

Finally, the documents say, she was refitted and fully laden: 18 tons of wheat, 17 tons of wine in great pipe barrels, some 7 tons of sea biscuit, almost 2 tons of flour, more than 2,000 pounds of cheese, and a ton of salt pork. Also aboard for the colonists were olive oil, sardines, raisins, and garlic.

From a ship's loaded cargo, it is possible to estimate the dimensions of her hold, and thus her hull. Lyon calculated Nina's 1498 Indies lading at just over 52 tons. She appears, therefore, to have been 67 feet long, with a beam of 21 feet and a draft of just under 7 feet. Her total carrying capacity was 58 to 60 tons.

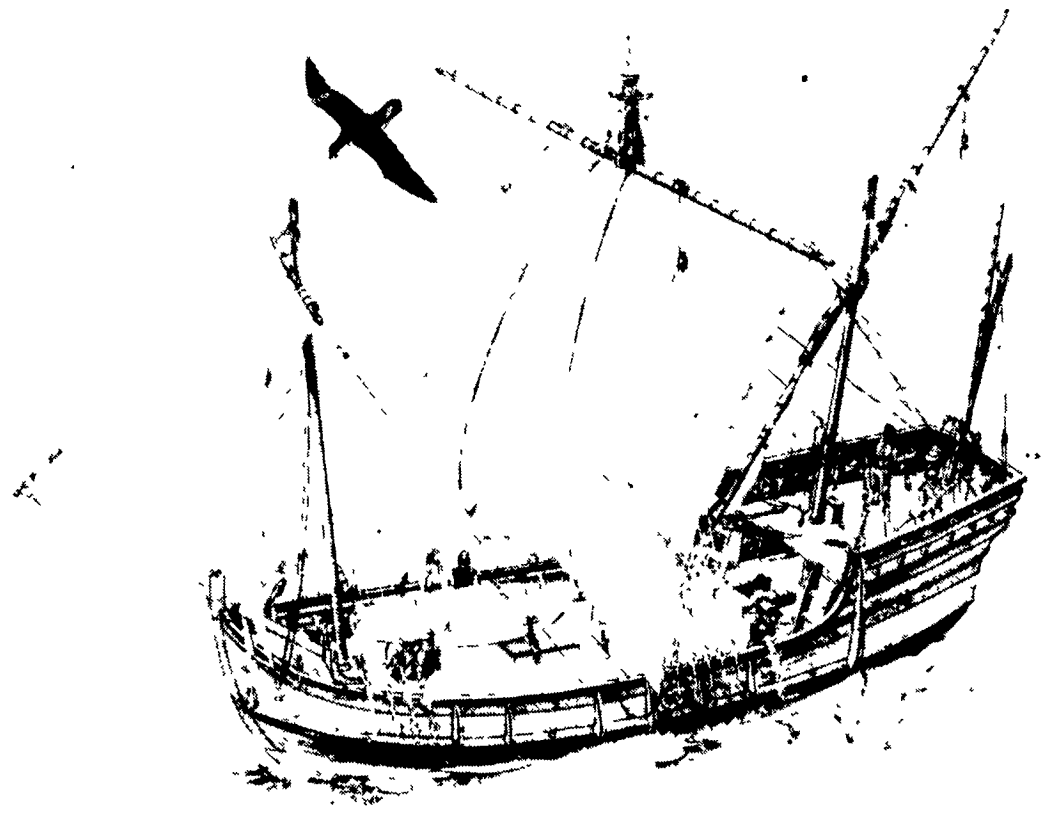
For this third voyage, Columbus had received permission to take as many as 330 persons to the Indies on royal salary. Nina and Santa Cruz carried more than 90 of them, including farmers and stockmen, crossbowmen, a priest, locksmith, miner, and surgeon.

Gypsy Women Aboard

Two of the four women aboard were Gypsies named Catalina and Maria, convicted murderers freed by the crown on condition that they emigrate.

Nina was armed with 10 bombardas with their breechlocks, turning yokes, bolts, and wedges, as well as 80 lead balls, 54 short and 20 long lances, and 100 pounds of gunpowder.

(Turn to Page B13)



Nina, Columbus's favorite ship, is depicted as she looked on his third voyage to the New World in 1498. Details of Nina's sails, rigging and other equipment were discovered by historian Eugene Lyon in a 15th century document on early Spanish fleets -- providing the first authentic look at a caravel of discovery. Nina had four masts, not three as previously thought. Until now, her style was assumed from early 16th-century drawings.

The Lifetime Roofing

NO RIP OFF!

Reroof directly over existing roof. For installation instructions

ASK THE EXPERTS!

THERE'S NO OTHER ROOFING MATERIAL LIKE IT.

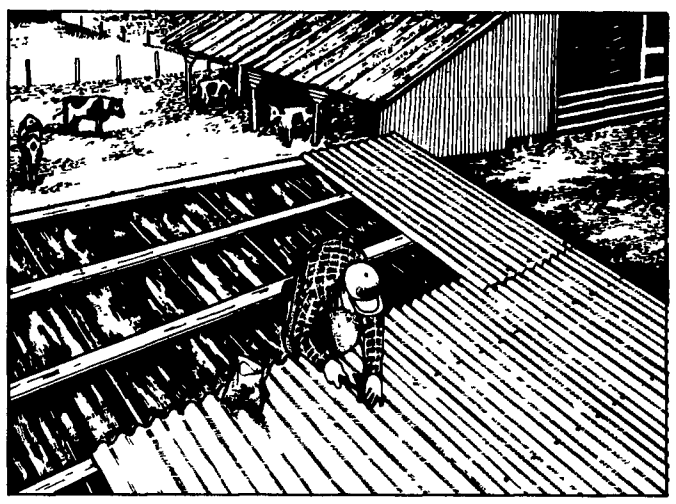
Onduline's very construction makes it different. And makes it a superior roofing and siding material at the same time.

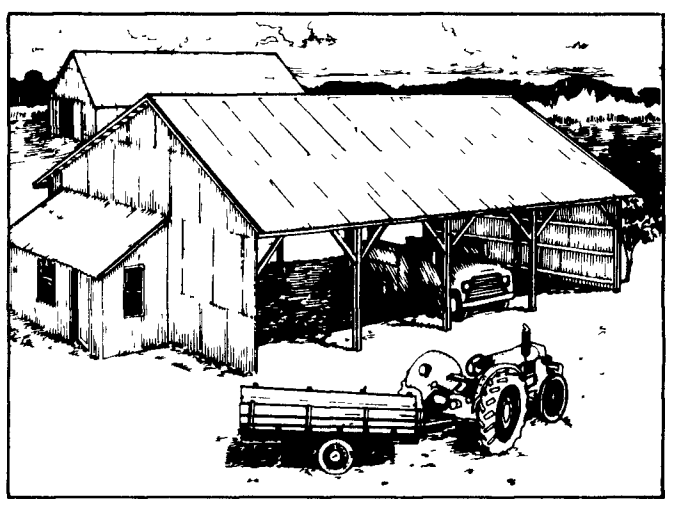
Its corrugated design enables it to be both lightweight and strong.

While its total asphalt impregnation means it outlasts most other roofing. Including metal.

But you don't have to take our word that Onduline is tough. It's met rigid building codes throughout the country.

And it's been in successful use on roofs all over the world for nearly 40 years.





EASY INSTALLATION ISN'T THE ONLY REASON TO USE ONDULINE.

The roof renewed with Onduline will have something it didn't have before.

Dead air space.

This means significantly better insulation because dead air space acts as a barrier to heat and cold transfer.

So in the winter, an Onduline-covered building is likely to be warmer. And in summer, cooler.

Of course, what makes Onduline such a good reroofing material is how long it lasts.

And that's the real reason why, above all, Onduline is a better roofing.

Corrugated Asphalt Roofing And Siding

Have You Heard?

Nutritious Brown Bag Lunches

Has your child ever returned from school with half-eaten lunches or reported that he made a trade for Tommy's peanut butter and marshmallow sandwich on white bread? The way to get your youngsters to eat nutritious lunches is to make them taste good. Here are some ideas to help you do just that.

Stay away from lunch meat sandwiches and try being creative with peanut butter on whole grain breads. Instead of sugar-laden jellies, add raisins or dates or unsweetened apple butter. Tuna, chicken and egg salad traditionally offer nutritious alternatives, but you can make them more appetizing and exciting by adding almonds, sunflower, or sesame seeds as well as raisins, apples or unique seasonings. And to cut back on the fat at the same time, try mixing in equal parts of plain yogurt in place of mayonnaise.

Snacks pose another problem. When your youngster's friends are nibbling away on chips and candy bars, how can you expect your child to nibble on carrot and celery sticks? To start, yogurt is a popular food that is likely to be accepted. Increase yogurt's appeal by mixing plain yogurt with your own fresh or dried fruits rather than buying the fruit-containing kind which is also usually high in sugar. Peanut butter lends itself nicely to snacks when spread on graham crackers or on fruits such as apples or bananas. Soft cheeses spread on raw vegetables also provide a good tasting snack. Some youngsters enjoy cottage cheese topped with applesauce and sprinkled with cinnamon, which is good for breakfast too. Replacements for chip-type nibbles are mixtures of nuts, cereals, or cheese and crackers.

The key to gaining acceptance of unusual lunches and snacks lies in the way you present them to children. Appeals like "because it's good for you" usually do not work. For little ones, set an example by trying new things with them and allowing them to help in preparation. With adolescents, the best approach is to relate nutritious suggestions to appearance issues, such as complexion, healthy hair, slimness or muscularity.

Caution With The Catalogs

Ordering things through the mail is so easy. For some people that are trying to balance families and careers, or for families with only one car, mail order shopping is almost a blessing. However, before you give into the temptation and convenience of catalog shopping, consider a few things.

Find out how much an item would cost if you bought it locally, don't pay more than something is worth simply because it's an easy way to buy.

If you are doing a lot of catalog shopping, better keep a list of everything you buy so you don't overspend. You don't want to end up over-extending the family budget.

Before you buy, find out if you can return any item you are displeased with. Also find out how much you will be charged for shipping and handling.

Prepare for delays by ordering well in advance of when you will need the item. One more thing to remember is if you are ordering by phone, try to always use 800 numbers. If you have to pay for the call, your phone bill may double the cost of the item.

Ag To Be Debate Topic

UNIVERSITY PARK – Farm-City Week was established in 1955 to promote better understanding between farm and city residents. This year brings a unique opportunity to increase this understanding: the national high school debate topic is agriculture.

From now through June an estimated 100,000 students from Maine to California will be learning more about agriculture as they research the question "What agricultural policy would best serve the economic interests of the United States?"

Actual debates will argue one of three specific resolutions:

- That the federal government should adopt an export program to significantly expand foreign markets for United States agricultural products.
- That the federal government should guarantee an annual cash income to farmers in the United States.
- That the federal government should implement a comprehensive, long-term agricultural policy in the United States.

Since each two-person debate team must be prepared to both defend and oppose one of three propositions selected for debate, they will spend hundreds of hours studying various dimensions of topics from defining a commodity to articulating the impact of federal regulation on small farmers. Teams will assemble evidence to support or dispute a particular point of view, build a case to implement a policy, and discuss a debate strategy.

Agriculture was chosen as this year's topic through a long selection process. Each year, the National Federation of State High School Associations investigates possible topics which are narrowed to three. High school debate coaches around the country then vote for the nationwide topic, and this year agriculture won out over Congress and Latin America.

Jeanne Lutz, instructor in speech at Penn State and director of the Pennsylvania High School Speech League, says that farm states pushed hard at the national conference for agriculture as this year's topic. "The timing was right. In light of its importance and prominence in the news; you can see why it was chosen," she says.

By the time the national tournament rolls around in June, there may not be any more definite answers to agricultural policy, but tens of thousands of young people will be more aware of how agricultural decisions affect producers, processors, and themselves.

As part of the Pennsylvania Speech League, debate teams will have their finals at the Keller Conference Center this spring, and the winning team will go on to the nationals.

The Nina

Nina carried three anchors, a small boat with six oars, and 11 water casks. According to the documents, her sails included a worn mainsail, an old foresail, an old mizzen sail, and a half-worn countermizzen sail. The countermizzen, which indicates two masts aft of the main mast, was Lyon's clue to the existence of Nina's four masts.

Lyon is in the process of translating all 400 pages of the Libro de Armadas, under a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to the University of Florida.

"Unfortunately," he writes, "it will not solve the mystery of Nina's final end." The documents record Nina's apparent sale to a Diego Ortiz in October 1499. And that, Lyon says, is the last glimpse of the beloved Little Girl.

Lancaster Homemakers Get A Headstart On Christmas Preparations

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Christmas may be two months away, but it isn't too early to start making gifts and decorations. Nearly 700 Lancaster County homemakers gathered in the Farm and Home Center this week to learn new crafts to brighten their homes during the holidays.

Several local craftsmen shared numerous harvest and holiday craft ideas during this year's extension-sponsored Christmas in October program. Sue Miller of Apple Bin Crafts, Lititz, began the morning session with instructions for making Indian corn arrangements and holiday wreaths. Using several ears of Indian corn and a corn dryer purchased from a local Amish craftsman, she created a colorful doorpiece or wallhanging. Sue said she soaks the corn in hot water for 30 minutes before putting it on the dryer.

The dryer can also be used to display fresh or wooden apples, she said. A sprig of evergreen and a red bow add a touch of Christmas to the arrangement.

Sue had a number of wreath ideas to share, including instructions for making a green Christmas wreath on a straw wreath form. To begin, she cut her greens into 6- or 7-inch sprigs, which she attached to the form using pole pins.

"This goes quite quickly if you have your greens cut ahead of time," she noted.

Once the greens were attached, Sue pinned a smaller, wire frame, rounded side out, on the inside of the wreath. Then, she glued dried apple slices to the frame using a hot glue gun. A bright red bow completed the arrangement.

Dried apples were the basis for a number of Sue's craft suggestions. To prepare them, she cuts the apples vertically into 1/8-inch slices. The thinner the apples are cut, the better they will dry, she advised. A single apple should yield 8 or 9 slices.

When sliced, the apples are dipped into a solution of 2 cups lemon juice and 1 tablespoon salt. To dry the apples, place them on nylon netting on an oven rack, set the oven at the lowest temperature (150°F.) and bake for 3 to 4 hours. Some apples may take as long as 6 or 7 hours, Sue noted.

The apples are ready for use when they are still pliable but have no moisture left when lightly squeezed with thumb and forefinger.

To create a dried apple wreath, Sue covered a wreath frame with brown floral tape. Then she applied glue to the form and attached the apples in a circular arrangement. Bows, baby's breath, cinnamon sticks, bay leaves and cranberries can be added for decoration, she suggested.

Cinnamon sticks formed the basis for another of Sue's wreaths. For this project, she cut a 13-inch diameter cardboard circle and cut an 8-inch diameter circle from its center to form the base. Then, using a hot glue gun, she attached 100 thick 4- to 5-inch long cinnamon sticks around the wreath base.

She added German white statice around the wreath center, extending it over the cinnamon sticks and almost covering the outer edge of the wreath. With that complete, she glued baby's breath pointing toward the center of the wreath and finished by gluing colorful dried flowers onto the wreath.

"It's very, very easy. It just involves gluing," she said.

For homemakers looking for a smaller project, Sue suggested cinnamon ornaments. To make the dough for this craft, combine 5 ounces of cinnamon and 10 tablespoons warmed applesauce. Then knead the dough and turn onto a cinnamon dusted cutting board. Roll to ¼- or 3/8-inch thick, cut with cookie cutters and poke a hole in the top of each for hanging. To dry, place on a wire screen for about 6 days.

Sue suggested purchasing cinnamon for this project in a bulk food store to save money.

Lancaster Extension home economist Doris Thomas shared quick craft ideas with the homemakers. She offered a few shortcuts for those who are too busy to start all of their projects from scratch.

With cookie cutters becoming increasingly popular, Doris suggested using them to create decorations. Using self-sticking ribbon, she covered both the outside and inside edges of a cookie cutter. The decorated cutter makes an ideal tree ornament. she said.

To add scent to the ornament, Doris glued fine nylon netting to one side, filled it with potpourri and then glued netting onto the other side. When the glue dried, she trimmed the edges of the netting to fit the cutter.

The ribbon-lined cutters can be glued together to form larger decorations, she added.

Mothers with young children found a friend in Sherry Kalbach of Lebanon County, who provided a list of 24 simple crafts for children. Known as "the garbage can lady" because she depends on "junk" for her crafts, Sherry said she does one craft with her young children each December day before Christmas. She calls it the Countdown to Christmas or Ornament of the Day.

Below are instructions for a few of Sherry's simple holiday projects for children.

• Animal Cookie/Paper Plate Manger — Glue three popsicle sticks on a paper plate to create a barn. Place a manger sticker in the center and paste two animal crackers beside the manger. A gold star sticker completes the scene.

• Dyed Rice Stained Glass Windows — Dye rice by placing it in a

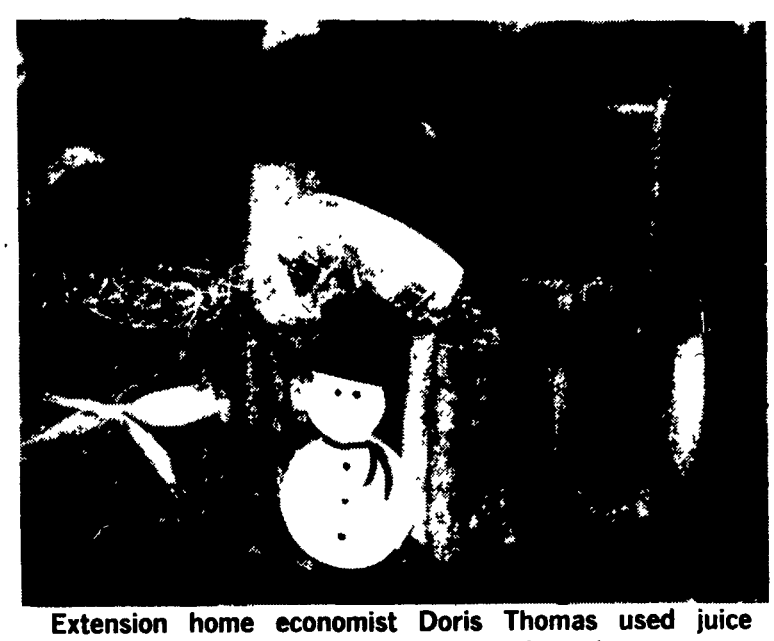
Among the craft ideas presented at Christmas in October were, from left, a Thanksgiving centerpiece made from a neck pumpkin, a dried apple wreath, and an evergreen and dried apple wreath.

Sherry Kalbach of Lebanon County presented ideas to keep anxious children busy until Christmas. Here she shows a quickly-constructed nativity scene that children can play with.

Cookie cutters lined with self-adhesive ribbon make a simple holiday decoration. Here, Lancaster County extension home economist Doris Thomas displays one she made using Christmas tree shaped cutters.



Extension home economist Doris Thomas used juice glasses, cinnamon sticks, and a purchased wooden snowman to create these holiday containers. The wooden basket at right was purchased, painted and decorated at minimal expense.

Following her presentation, Sue Miller answers questions about her craft ideas. In the foreground is a dried apple wreath, left, and a cinnamon-stick wreath.

Speer Named Regional Star Farmer

BLAIRS MILLS — J. Richard Speer, 19, son of James and Henrietta Speer of Blairs Mills, was recently named Eastern Regional Star Farmer at the Eastern States Exposition at West Springfield, Massachusetts.

A 1985 graduate of Southern Huntingdon High School, Rich is in partnership with his parents on their dairy farms. He has also demonstrated outstanding leadership abilities in the FFA by holding chapter and county offices, participating in numerous contests on the local and state levels, and played in the state FFA band for four years. He is currently the state treasurer for the Pennsylvania Association and won first place in the State Dairy Proficiency Contest.

The Eastern States Exposition Star Awards recognize the accomplishments of FFA members from the 15 states in the FFA's Eastern Region. FFA membership in the region totals over 100,000 youth who are studying vocational agriculture and agribusiness in secondary high schools. Participants in the Star's Big E Awards program were all selected as their respective state's Star winners in production farming and agribusiness categories.

The Star Farmer and Star AgriBusiness Person Awards Pageant was sponsored by Sears and Roebuck Company and the Eastern States Exposition which is the largest fair in the east.

plastic bag with a few drops of food coloring. Sqeeze bag until rice changes color. Then glue the rice to cardboard or stiff paper to create colorful "stained glass" pictures.

• Play-do Pretzels — Draw a pretzel on a sheet of paper or cardboard. Trace the pretzel with non-toxic glue and sprinkle with birdseed. On a cold, clear winter day, have children put the pretzels outside for the birds to enjoy.

• Deli Clear Plastic Lid Frames — Save the tops of plastic deli containers. Draw a circle of cardboard the size of the deli tops, draw pictures on the cardboard and paste clear, plastic lid over top to create a simple ornament.

• Milkweed Pod Poinsettia — In the autumn, collect milkweed pods. Have children paint the pods red, then glue them together to form poinsettias.

• Wishbone Rudolph — Save wishbone from Thanksgiving turkey or chicken. Using a styrofoam egg for a head, implant wishbone to form antlers. Decorate egg to look like a face.

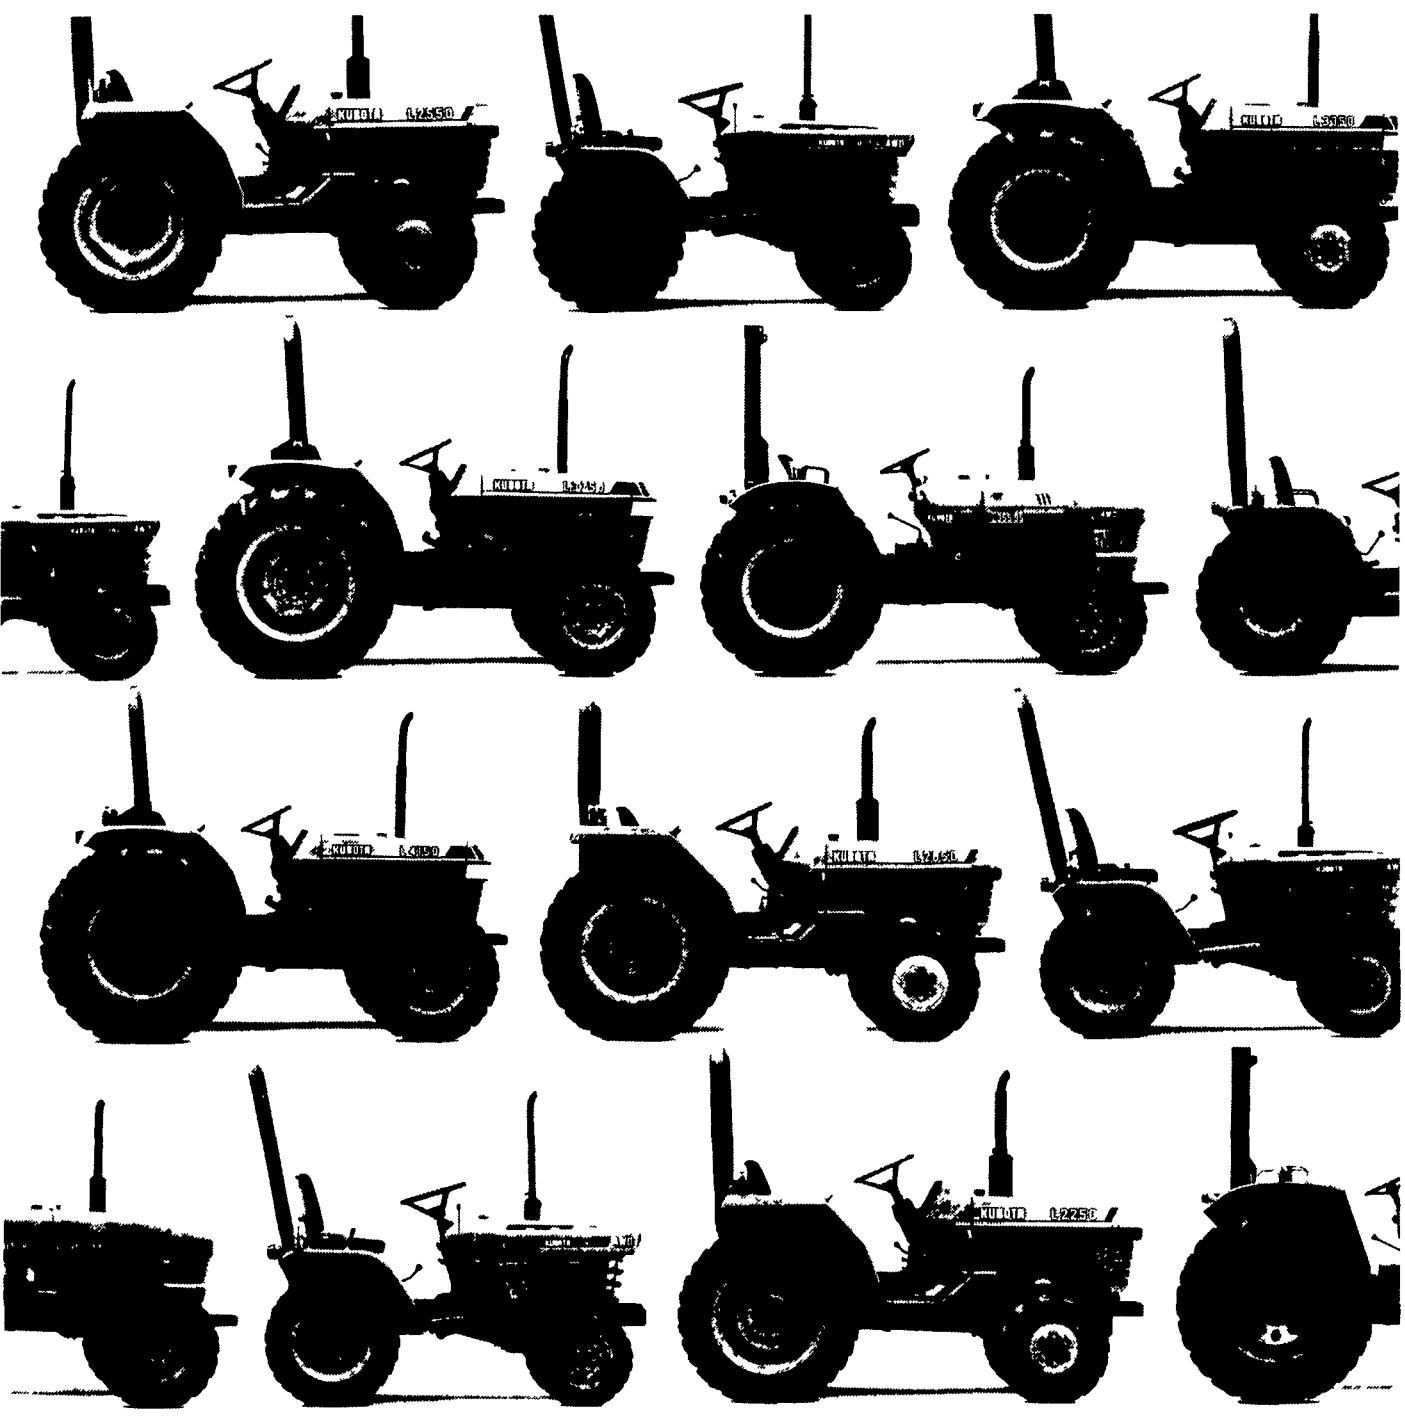
• Spiced/glittered Pinecones — Fill a plastic bag with spices or glitter. Put glue on edges of pinecones, place in bag and shake. The decorated, or scented, cones can be placed in a basket for display.

• Spaghetti "Grapevine" Wreaths — Cook spaghetti until soft, but not done. Drain and place on waxed paper. Swirl to form wreath shapes. Allow to dry and decorate.

• Candy Kiss Countdown Tree — draw a Christmas tree on a piece of cardboard; color or paint green. Attach a foil-covered candy kiss with glue for each of the 24 days preceeding Christmas. Each day, allow your child to remove a kiss. Here's a poem to share with your youngster for this project.

"December the first till Christmas; is the longest time of year. Seems though old Santa; Never will appear! How many days till Christmas? It's mighty hard to count. So this little "Kiss-Mas" tree; Will tell you the exact amount. When Momma says it's OK; Take off a Kiss every day; When only the star is left to shine; Then you will know it's Christmas time!

In the afternnon Nan Schock of Funk's Floral Design Shoppe, Millersville, presented a demonstration of Christmas decorations using fresh and silk greens and flowers.



NOBODY HAS MORE HORSEPOWER UNDER FORTY.

Under forty horses, nobody sells more tractors than we do. One reason is simple. We give you more choices.

There are sixteen compact sizes, each a different model. One of them should fit you perfectly. And once you settle on the horsepower, there are still more choices.

Pick special options like 4-wheel drive, power steering or a hydraulic shuttle transmission. Or choose a Kubota-made implement, the best match for any of our Kubota tractors.

There are, however, a couple of decisions we've made for you.

For example, Kubota's own liquid-cooled diesel engine comes standard in every model. An advanced design, it's built for efficient operation. So a little horsepower works like more.

We've also chosen the color.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

I've been rereading the ledger that my grandfather kept from 1877 to 1899. In it he recorded every cent that he paid his hired help. Their pay ranged from $5 per month to $12 in 1895.

They were not paid weekly but rather bit by bit over a year's time. What is interesting is that when they received 25 cents, 70 cents or $1.50, he recorded what it was used for. As his farm was only one mile from the village of Oregon, they often walked there on a Saturday night to go to the store. Sometimes he paid their store and mill bills.

Boots cost $2 or $3, overalls 50 cents, shoes $1 and a bushel of clover seed was $4.50. Of course, they were only paid two cents per shock for husking 306 shocks of corn.

Only two women are mentioned in the records. Apparently, they only came to do the washing and to make the butter as when they missed butter making it was noted in the book.

I found their social activities, as listed when they took a day off, to be quite fascinating. Sometimes they went to a fox chase, horse races, a circus at Lancaster, a fair at Lititz on Sept. 4, 1896, a camp meeting at White Oak or simply a country auction.

Occasionally they took off to "Fetch coal at Rothsville," or "pick up chestnuts," or "deliver tobacco," or "pick huckleberries." Some prices that they paid were extremely low according to our standards today. A chicken cost 30 cents (not dressed, I'll bet), a pair of pigeons 25 cents, a guinea 12 cents, two ducks 85 cents, a bundle of rye straw 15 cents, one dozen eggs 14 cents, one pound of butter 18 cents and one bushel of potatoes was 75 cents.

My grandfather noted that he bought a red bull for $30 and 12 shoats for $36. A fat pig cost $10, a buggy $8 and a watch was $2.

I'd suppose that a farmer's situation was similar to todays — it had its ups and downs.

Kline Named Chairman Of 4-H Board

UNIVERSITY PARK — Richard Kline, general supervisor for Philadelphia Electric Company, Schuylkill Division, was elected chairman of the Board of Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H for 1986/87 at the board's recent annual meeting at Penn State.

As chairman of Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H, Kline will lead the board's efforts to obtain private support for the 4-H program at the state level. Over the past six years, this organization has raised more than $350,000 for educational programs for 4-H members and volunteers.

Last year alone, Friends of 4-H sponsored 28 educational programs costing over $75,000.

"None of this would have been possible without the tremendous support of our many donors, the Cooperative Extension Service staff, and other members of the board," Kline said. "I am looking forward to the many challenges this position will offer me next year."

Kline is a graduate of Drexel University, where he received a B.S. in business administration and did graduate work in marketing. He served as a first lieutenant with the U.S. Army in the United States and in Germany.

Kline is active politically as a Montgomery County Republican Committeeman. He is a member and past chairman of the Lakemont Township zoning hearing board and was a supervisor of Whitemarsh Township from 1970 to 1980. He is also a member and past president of the Steven Girard Lion's Club.

Kline is a member of the Pottstown Building Industries Exchange and the Southeastern Home Builders Association. He also is president of the Manufacturers Association of Greater Conshohoken.

He has been a member of the Board of Directors of Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H since 1982. He currently resides in Conshohocken with his wife, Joanna. His son Richard is a junior at Penn State.

Think Safety This Halloween

YORK — Don't let uncomfortable or unsafe costumes take the fun out of your children's Halloween, says Extension Home Economist A. Joan Lamberson. She offers the following suggestions for this year's costume planning.

• If you purchase ready-made costumes, select masks, wigs and beards that carry a flameproof label.

• Avoid flimsy materials and excessive yardage in costumes. A touch of flame can easily start them burning.

• Flameproof homemade costumes by using this treatment — mix seven ounces of regular laundry borax and three ounces of boric acid with two quarts of water. Saturate the costume thoroughly and then let it drip dry. This fire-retardant is temporary and won't harm the fabric. It must be renewed after every laundering to be effective.

• Do not allow children to carry a pumpkin lighted by a wax candle and do not set a candle-lighted pumpkin on the doorstep. If a child's costume brushes the pumpkin, a fire could easily start. Also be careful about setting a candle-lighted pumpkin indoors near curtains or table decorations.

• Be sure children understand they must stay away from open fire or flames.

• For traffic safety and general accident prevention, keep the children's costumes short enough so they won't trip and light enough in color to make them clearly visible to motorists. Reflector tape on the front and back of the costume gives better visibility.

• Instead of masks, try letting children decorate their faces with inexpensive make-up or colored chalk.

Lancaster Society 1

Verna and Viola Mueller, twin sisters from Willow Street, demonstrated flower drying and arranging for members of Lancaster Society 1 at their Oct. 11 meeting held in the home of Edna Shearer.

The Mueller sisters raise many flowers and plants at their home, where they dry them for use in arrangements. They showed Society 1 members how to make an arrangement to fit into a bottle and how to cut the bottle. The finished project was given as a door prize.

The Muellers also displayed a variety of arrangements they make to sell. Their presentation included slides of their own flower gardens and of others in the area.

In the business meeting, president Wolfe reminded members to bring items for the bazaar table at the county convention, which will be held Saturday, Nov. 1 at the Farm and Home Center.

The state convention will be held Jan. 12 and 13 in Harrisburg. Joanne Hershey will be the banquet speaker.

The county farm women's society is publishing a cookbook from recipes provided by members. It can be purchased for $15.

New officers for next year are: president, Ann Landis; vice president, Viola Wolfe; and treasurer, Marta Jane Brubaker.

Marion Fuhrman and Mary Clark served as co-hostesses.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Margaret Bucher, Lititz.

Lancaster Society 2

Members of Lancaster Society 2 celebrated Halloween by dressing in costume for their Oct. 11 meeting at the home of Loretta Steiner. Betty Geib served as co-hostess.

Members not wearing costumes paid a $2 fine.

Roll call was answered by paying $3 dues. The society paid the dues for nine members who have had perfect attendance for the past year.

Representatives from societies 2, 5 and 26 served as judges in selecting the Manheim Farm Show queen and gave monetary gifts as consolation prizes.

A report was given on the recent bus trip to Pearl Buck's home and Fonthill Castle near Doylestown.

The crowded agenda included items from the executive board and last minute discussions and decisions about Farm Women's Day, which was held Oct. 14.

The following new officers were elected: vice president, Elsie Witmer; and recording secretary, Loretta Steiner.

Esther Farrel, Elsie Witmer and Phyllis Lord won games and door prizes.

Lancaster Society 3

Members of Lancaster Society 3 recently met at the recording studio of David and Alice Leininger, Denver, for their monthly meeting.

On Oct. 15, members entertained their husbands with dinner at the Bear Den, Hershey, and a hockey game that pitted the Hershey Bears against Binghamton.

Ten members attended the Lancaster County Farm Women Brunch at Willow Valley Oct. 14.

The program at the last meeting was a fashion show. People came dressed as follows:

January — Old Father Time depicted by Doris Miller. New Year Baby 1986 by little Serenity Leininger.

February — Little Miss Cupid — Mary Nash.

March — Happy St. Patrick's Day Lepricon by Anna Hoover.

April — Easter Bunny by Jean Aungst.

May — The Flower Lady, Barbara Wenger.

June — Melinda Graybill wore her grandmother's wedding dress of 58 years. Sue Royer wore a 1960 prom dress.

July — Miss Liberty, Doris Miller.

August — A 1920 bathing suit worn by Alice Trumbauer.

September — A school girl of the 1950s, Allegra Leininger.

October — Miss October was Ruth Messner dressed as a corn shock.

November — Thanksgiving Dinner, a cafton of burlap worn by Alice Trumbauer.

December — Mrs. Santa Claus dressing in a red and white outfit modeled by Erla Gehman, who distributed gifts to everyone.

Gladys Paul was the narrator and David Leininger provided the music.

Esther Stuber, Erla Gehman and Irene Eberly were offered a bouquet of thanks for their work at the food stand at Ephrata Fair.

BISON

INTERMEDIATE RYEGRASS

WINTER HARDY AND PRODUCTIVE

From widely separated spots across the U.S. come continuing reports of the winter-hardiness of Bison Intermediate Ryegrass as well as its ability to produce highly palatable, easily digestible forage for beef and dairy cattle.

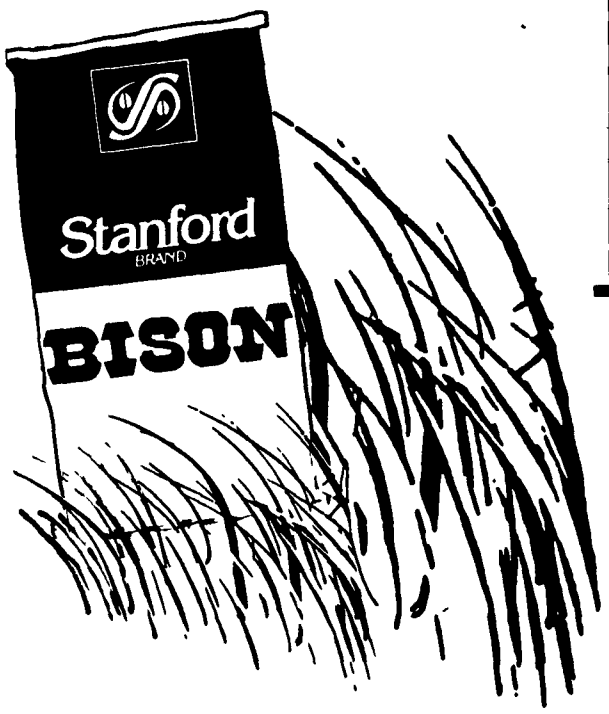
FAST GERMINATING

Under normal conditions, Bison will germinate in a matter of 7-10 days, quickly become a vigorous seedling and develop a strong root system.

OFFERS UNUSUAL VERSATILITY

Bison is at its best when sown in combination with Medistan & Lancaster Plus for long-term pasture or hay production. However, it can be used alone for short rotation pasture or hay production or as green chop or plow-down.

Bison is so aggressive you can seed less!!



"Bison has done a great job for me. I was really pleased with Bison's survival rate after a winter with a minus 50° chill factor and no protective snow cover."

N.J. FFA'ers Receive American Farmer Degrees

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — Four New Jersey FFA members will receive the American Farmer Degree, the highest FFA degree awarded to an FFA member, at the National Convention, Nov. 13 to 15 in Kansas City, Mo. Dedication and hard work earned Wayne Beal, Jr. of Bridgeton, Kenneth Ingalls of Allentown, Ross Mills of Princeton, and Patricia Wentzell of Woodstown this degree.

The American Farmer degree is awarded based on a member's involvement, Supervised Occupational Experience project development and personal dedication to growth in leadership and service to the community.

As an example of the intensive SOE projects involved, Wayne's project revolves around nursery and landscaping crops. He is busy preparing crops for the next season as well as selling his plants this season. Wayne is a member of the Cumberland Regional FFA Chapter, Seabrook, and a life-time member of the FFA Alumni Association.

Ken Ingalls' project covers many areas of agriculture. His project includes haybaling, a feeder pig operation, a beef operation, sweet potato hot beds, and honey production. Diversified is a word to describe Ken, a student at Rutgers University, Cook College. He is a member of the Allentown FFA Chapter, Allentown and the H. O. Sampson Collegiate FFA Chapter, New Brunswick.

Ross Mills is raising Angus and dairy cows as his SOE project. He has gained experience from employment with Kuster Farms and Johanna Farms. Ross is a member of the Hunterdon Central FFA Chapter, Flemington, and he is also a life-time member of the FFA Alumni Association.

Patricia Wentzel's SOE project has involved many animals which include dairy cows, rabbits, goats, and ponies. By living on a dairy farm, Pat has realized the hard work and dedication it takes to receive the American Farmer Degree. She is a member of the Woodstown FFA Chapter, Woodstown.

OH! OH!
The cows are falling.
How do you know?
Farmer Brown said so.

How do you know Farmer Brown?
I saw it with my eyes.
I heard it with my ears.
And there is less milk in the pail.
Let's go ask the wise old owl.
The owl thought for a moment.
"Call the Scabbler Man", he said.
"He can fix the barn for you, and You'll find more milk in the pail!"

Sire Power Directories

TUNKHANNOCK — The 1987 Sire Power Holstein Directories are available now, and display a breeding program for maximum profit and production for your herd.

It's attractive green cover, stamped with the gold Sire Power emblem features full-color photos of two breed greats — 9H719 Ned Boy and 9H584 Chairman. An outstanding daughter of each bull also appears and provides a reflection of the outstanding genetics contained inside the directory. This year's directory features full color on the sires and daughters throughout the 56 page text.

Two featured sires: 9H719 Ned Boy and 9H584 Chairman are highlighted on two pages each. These sires are breed-leaders, and their daughters exemplify the strong type characteristics, outstanding production, as well as test and protein. Both are graduates of the GOLD young Sire Development Program, which uses random sampling in its design.

Also featured in this directory are bulls from Northern Ohio Breeding Association Tiffin, Ohio, and Kansas Artificial Breeding Service Unit, Manhattan, Kan. These organizations along with Sire Power recently entered into a marketing agreement which operates under the name of Allied Genes. For our customers, we can provide a wider selection of top A.I. progeny proven sires at a reasonable cost. This combined Allied Genes line-up offers top production, type and profit-oriented sires which are all included in the Sire Power directory.

This directory presents the most accurate and up-to-date information available on every sire. The Sire Power Linear Breeding Guide information shows the strong and least positive breeding patterns on each sire. These breeding patterns offer breeders the best available guide to most correctly breed an outstanding herd. Protein and cheese yield information is included in the USDA block of statistics.

Sire Power offers a directory on Total Performance with genetics to fit any dairyman's breeding program. We offer quality sires from results of a superior sampling program, which is a leader in the A.I. industry in regard to returns to dairymen involved with the program.

In addition, the directory also informs you about the professional services and programs available at Sire Power.

Don't miss the opportunity to benefit from the Sire Power line-up and programs, contact your local Sire Power representative for your copy of the 1987 Holstein Directory today! Or write Sire Power, Inc., R.D. #2, Tunkhannock, PA 18657, or Box 555, Frederick, MD 21701.

USDA Program Will Promote Food Exports

WASHINGTON — Under Secretary of Agriculture Daniel G. Amstutz recently announced plans for a program that will provide $3.2 million to promote U.S. exports of high-value and processed foods.

"Our processed and high-value food products are hampered not only by import restrictions in many large markets, but also by unfair competition from subsidized food exports by the European Community," Amstutz said. "Our goal with this program is to counter the effects of these practices by stepping up our promotional activities for U.S. food products that are new to a particular market."

The program will support a wide range of activities, including media and direct mail advertising, market research, participation in trade fairs, and point-of-sale promotion and sampling.

Grain drying quality

Shivvers automatic continuous flow grain drying systems eliminate the over-drying often caused by slow stirring devices. The Shivvers' secret is the tapered sweep auger which rotates around the drying bin, removing even layers of dried grain, assuring the removal of uniformly dried grain. For a better way to dry grain, see your Shivvers dealer.

Be Aware Of 'Sodbuster' Regulations

Farmers considering plowing down rotational hay on highly-erodible cropland should check with their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service or Soil Conservation Service office first.

The breaking of any sod on highly erodible land, including some Class 2 soils as well as Class 3 and above, could be a violation of the conservation provisions of the Food Security Act of 1985. Such violations carry stiff payback penalties and denial of future benefits from various farm programs, including:

- price and income supports
- disaster payments
- crop insurance
- Farmers Home Administration loans
- Commodity Credit Corporation storage payments
- farm storage facility loans
- other programs under which USDA makes commodity-related payments, including annual payments made under the Conservation Reserve Program.

Farmers are strongly encouraged to check the erodibility index of their land with SCS before doing anything. Check with ASCS for details on violation of the act and possible financial consequences.

DICKEY-john DjGMT Grain Moisture Tester

The DICKEY-john Grain Moisture Tester measures moisture content automatically. You don't have to pre-weigh the sample. There are no meters to read, no dials to set, and no thermometers to lose. As soon as you pour in the grain sample, the testing sequence begins. A digital readout is displayed when the proper weight of the sample has entered the test chamber. The readout is corrected for temperature at the touch of a pressure sensitive switch. Models are available with direct readouts for corn, soybeans or wheat, and adhesive conversion charts are provided for other grains.

- GRAIN TESTER Remanufactured, New Warranty, In Stock ONLY..... $169.75
- FORAGE MODEL List...$310 CASH..... $215

Simple, four-step operation

1 Place the tester on a steady level surface. Then lift the protective cover up and slide it down out of the way.

2 Use the sample cup to pour grain into the testing cell. Pour slowly and steadily taking about eight to ten seconds to empty the sample cup. A readout will appear automatically.

3 Wait at least fifteen seconds. Then press the temperature compensation switch for a direct readout of the moisture content of the grain listed on that switch. Refer to the appropriate chart for other grains.

4 Empty the tester by turning it over. (If you should forget to empty the test cell, the tester will shut itself off automatically after two minutes.)

...THE AXIAL-FLOW SPECIALISTS

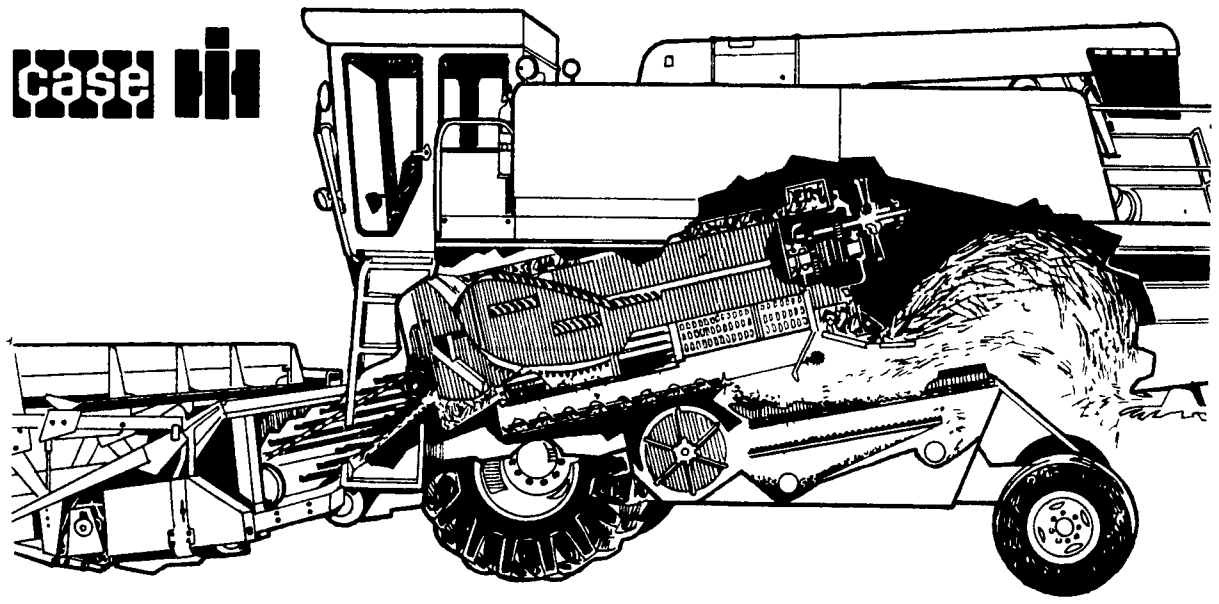
The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

FEWER MOVING PARTS...

HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN...

ALL CROP VERSATILITY...

case IH



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For nine years Hoober's 3 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

DRAG IN THE PROFIT

Make your tractor a productive forest machine with a Farmi Logging Winch. Your tractor and the Farmi Winch is a low cost solution for winching in and skidding out your firewood, pulpwood and logs.

FARMI MODEL	LINE PULL	TRACTOR SIZE
JL300	6600 LBS.	17-30 HP
JL400	8820 LBS.	20-40 HP
JL500	11025 LBS.	40-60 HP
JL600	13230 LBS.	60-150 HP
JL60+	17640 LBS.	100-200 HP

The winches fit any 3 point hitch. Several logs can be winched in at one time. The cable is locked when the logs have been winched to the tractor. The 3 point hitch is raised to lift the logs off the ground when the logs are transported to the landing.
We also sell studded tire chains for farm tractors and log skidders like the ones pictured on the tractor above. They are made of Baron steel so they wear much longer than regular chains.

Free delivery on all winches.
Farmi Winches and tire chains are sold and serviced by:

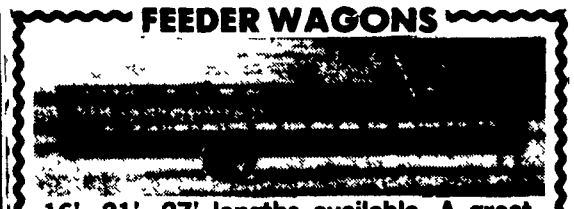
FEEDER WAGONS



16', 21', 27' lengths available. A great feature for feeding cattle in meadows or in feed lots. Can be used for feeding round bales.
If old gas tanks are used for feeder wagon bottoms, they should be sand blasted. If not, the gas and rust may result in sick cattle or even death. Be safe and buy from us as ours are sand blasted before being painted.

Ratchet strap TIE DOWN

- 10 Ft. $21.88
- 15 Ft. $24.88
- 20 Ft. $29.88

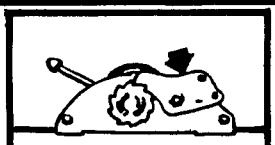
Instructions
Crease webbing and insert the crease (1) through slot (2) in the ratchet shaft. Be sure the webbing is not twisted. Pull loop through slot until each end of strap is at the desired length The frame may be placed anywhere on the length of webbing by adjusting length of the loop.
Keep at least a 6" loop so that webbing does not slip out of slot when strap is tightened. Winding too much webbing around shaft reduces the mechanical advantage To avoid winding up too much webbing, lenghten loop.



To release the Ratchet Strap, increase the tension on the strap slightly (to relieve the pressure on the pawl) then depress the pawl as shown, and unwind.

- STEEL FOR STRENGTH

A few suggested ways to secure "S" hooks

Lyng Names Pork Board Members

DES MOINES, Iowa — Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng's recent appointment of the new 15-member National Pork Board sets the stage for the official start-up of the new national pork producers legislative checkoff Nov. 1.

Secretary Lyng selected the appointees from a list of nominees elected last month by the Pork Producers Delegate Body. The 15-member Board will have the responsibility of collecting the checkoff and deciding how the money will be spent.

Named to three-year terms on the National Pork Board were: Virgil Rosendale, Augusta, IL; Leroy Vollmer, Boonville, MO; Ritchie Jordan, Suffolk, VA, James McKee, Attica, IN; and Henry Greenebaum, Scarsdale, NY. Mr. Greenebaum is an importer.

Appointed to two-year terms were:Linden Olson, Worthington, MN; Hilman Schroeder, Sauk City, WI; GAry Simpson, Ault, CO; Roland Mohesky, Wilson, NC; and Harold Trask, Renwick, IA.

The following were appointed to serve one-year terms: Roy Sharp, Tulare, CA; William Buller, Brookings, SD; Allen Keppy, Wilton, IA; Ron Keller, Monroe, NE; and Sandra Gifford, Onondaga, MI.

"The nation's pork producers are grateful for the expeditious manner in which Secretary Lyng moved to announce the official appointments," said Ron Kahle, president of the National Pork Producers Council.

The National Pork Board is expected to hold its first meeting in early November.

Red Meat : A Nutrient-Rich Food

BY RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — As we are all aware, the average consumption of red meat in the American diet is declining. How much further this decline goes is anybody's guess, but will be determined in part by health concerns, misconceptions about meat and the influence of other groups including animal rights activists.

Red meat is an excellent source of protein, B vitamins and many other nutrients essential for a healthy body. One of the biggest problems we face in the swine industry is the public's misconception of red meat. Recently one campaign, "Meat Out," was held to discourage meat consumption. How serious are these campaigns? Very serious. How effective? That remains to be seen, but remember, consumption is going down.

There are many people in America who have chosen not to eat meat because of the cost, fat or cholesterol content, or for religious or philosophic reasons. Why do certain groups get so vocal? Some strongly object to the slaughter and processing of animals for consumption. This is an attitude that the livestock industry better get used to.

The Move Away From Ag

The bulk of our population is urban or suburban. And considering some of the current economic problems agriculture is facing due to overproduction, this non-farm sector is going to grow. After a few generations away from the farm, people become accustomed to purchasing food in a grocery store without any regard to where it came from.

Because they're no longer exposed to the production and processing of livestock, some people are appalled to realize that animals are slaughtered to produce meat in the grocery store. Livestock producers and meat packers may be viewed as villains, and some vocal individuals may begin to speak out against the entire livestock industry.

I know this all sounds a bit farfetched, but I feel the single most important issue the red meat industry faces with regard to reduced consumption is the public's misconceptions about red meat and a lack of contact with the rural sector.

There are people out there who have never seen a pig, cow or sheep except through cute pictures that occasionally run in the newspapers. These pictures depict animals in unnatural human settings (such as the 600-pound sow on the sofa I recently saw).

So what can we in the livestock industry do? Obviously we must respect the right of people who don't want to eat meat. This is a personal choice and one that everybody is entitled to; however, we can make sure that consumers know that meat is good for them.

Contrary to the bad press it has received recently, meat is actually one of our most nutritious foods, but it is not essential in the human diet. However, there are few, if any, better sources of protein, B vitamins (including B-12) and certain minerals, especially iron and zinc. The iron in meat, called heme iron, is absorbed by the body and also helps the body use non-heme iron from plant sources.

Victim of Misinformation

Some of the claims made about meat are untrue. Meat is not excessively high in fat and cholesterol. Most cuts of lean meat contain less than 80 milligrams of cholesterol for a three-ounce serving, making it possible to include meat, in moderation, in low cholesterol diets.

As for fat, meat contains far less today than it did in the past. Hogs, for example, are 50 percent leaner now than they were in 1950. I'm amazed at how lean most of the meat cuts are in the supermarket. Some pork chops I've purchased recently are almost too lean to cook properly. What's more, less than half of the fat in beef and pork is saturated. The rest is monosaturated and polyunsaturated, and most cuts of meat, with visible fat removed, yield less than 200 calories per serving.

As an industry, it's important for us to educate the non-farm public about our product. Red meat is a nutrient-dense food and needs to be promoted as such. Providing consumers with factual information about our meat products and letting them decide what to eat is an essential part of marketing the meat we produce.

The public is getting further and further away from agriculture. So it's up to all farm commodity groups to educate consumers about agricultural products.

Emotionalism and irrational reactions to certain vocal consumer groups won't do anything to address this problem. Factual information is the key to understanding. Provide that and let the consumer decide.

National Charolais Show Scheduled

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The American-International Charolais Association, along with the Kentucky Charolais Association, is finalizing plans for the 18th National Charolais Show and 8th National Charolais Sale to be held Nov. 16-19 in Louisville, Ky.

Beginning at noon on Tuesday, Nov. 18, Charolais breeders from across the country will lead out the top Charolais in the nation. Ric Hoyt of Burns, Ore., and Dr. Donald Boggs of the University of Grorgia at Athens, will evaluate the cattle.

On the following morning at 10 a.m., Nov. 19, the 8th National Sale gets underway, offering 28 cataloged lots from the top herds in North American. In addition, selections made from the top placings of the National show will round out the sale consignments.

Headquarters for all Charolais activities and meeting is the Executive Inn. The hotel's special rates for the Charolais group are $49 (single) or $57 (double). Reservations should be made by calling 800-626-2706 or 502/367-6161. Ask for the Charolais block of rooms.

For more information about the National Charolais events in Louisville, contact the American-International Charolais Association, P.O. Box 20247, Kansas City, MO 64195, or call 816/464-5977.

The New Checkoff Program

Nov. 1, 1986 is something of a milestone for the pork industry. It marks the date when mandatory checkoff begins. What does this mean? Hog producers and importers, by law, must now contribute a portion of the hog's value to further pork promotion, research and consumer information.

We've been voluntarily "checking off" hogs for years. It began in 1968 when producers decided to contribute a nickel per market hog to the National Pork Producers Council. As the promotion effort gained momentum, producers increased the checkoff rate until it reached 20 cents per hog and 10 cents per feeder pig.

Then in 1984, producers decided to change the way checkoff worked. "Let's base the checkoff on the hog's value," they reasoned. "That way, as hog prices go up, checkoff will increase. When hog prices drop and profits are lower, checkoff will drop too." So on July 1, 1985, producers began checking off hogs and pigs at the rate of .30 percent, or 30 cents for a $100 hog.

While that made the checkoff rate more equitable, one problem lingered. The system was voluntary and only 60 percent of the hogs were being checked off. So hog producers went to Washington and by Christmas 1985, Congress gave producers the present they wanted — mandatory checkoff. Here's how it will work:

WHEN? Mandatory checkoff begins Nov. 1, 1986.

HOW MUCH? The checkoff rate will be .25 percent of the value of feeder pigs, market hogs and breeding stock. For example, checkoff will be 15 cents for a $60 feeder pig, 30 cents for a $120 market hog, and $3.75 for a $1,500 boar.

CAN ANIMALS BE CHECKED OFF MORE THAN ONCE? Yes. Feeder pigs sold into finishing operations will be checked off at the time of delivery and again when they are sold as market hogs.

WHO PAYS? The seller.

WHO SENDS THE MONEY? The buyer. Anyone buying pigs or hogs must deduct the checkoff from their payment and send it to the national headquarters. With breeding stock, the seedstock producer must send the checkoff money to the national office.

WHO IS THE MONEY SENT TO? The National Pork Board, recently appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, will be collecting the money. But until the Board has a permanent address, checkoff will be sent to NPPC. For now, forms can be obtained from NPPC.

WHO DECIDES HOW THE MONEY WILL BE SPENT? The National Pork Board. Most of it will be spent on pork promotion, research and consumer information. Roughly 20 percent will be returned to each state organization. NPPC will also receive an automatic allotment from the National Pork Board, but only for the next three and one-half years.

WHAT ABOUT IMPORTED HOGS AND PORK? Foreign hogs will be checked off the same as U.S. hogs. Imported pork will also be checked off at .25 percent, but the value of the pork products will be multiplied by 70 percent to convert it to a live basis. For example, the check-off rate for a $15 imported ham will be about two and one-half cents.

HOW LONG WILL THE MANDATORY CHECKOFF LAST? Twenty-four to thirty months. At that time the Secretary of Agriculture will conduct a nation-wide referendum. Until then, refunds can be obtained by sending the appropriate forms, even though the checkoff is mandatory.

HOW MUCH MONEY WILL THE CHECK-OFF GENERATE? Probably $18 to $20 million. Right now NPPC takes in about $12 million. Is that a lot of money? It's a good start. But we're a long way from the more than $200 million that the dairy industry collects for promotion.

WILL NPPC COLLAPSE, NOW THAT THE NATIONAL PORK BOARD IS CALLING THE SHOTS? There's no question that NPPC will lose a lot of control. But I'm sure the National Pork Board will utilize NPPC for major program efforts since they have tools and the expertise.

Along with taking part in the activities of the sale, students will be putting on a demonstration on how to prepare a calf for the show ring. This clinic is designed to help juniors who wish to show their heifer or steers.

The cattle barn will be open for public inspection at 5 p.m. October 31, followed by a social hour at 7 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m.

Angus Assoc. Offers Sire Report

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Individual and progeny data on more than 32,000 Angus bulls was analyzed to provide the information contained in the 1986 Angus Sire Evaluation Report, now available from the American Angus Association.

The report lists complete sire evaluation for birth, weaning and yearling information on 1,193 bulls that are currently in use in the United States. In addition there are 1,298 bulls listed in the young sire supplement.

For the first time the report contains a section with detailed carcass information. This was initiated because of increased demand for cattle that produce superior carcasses with a minimum of fat cover, both for the Certified Angus beef program and the general beef trade. It features information on 187 bulls.

No charge is made for a single copy of the report this year, either to members of the American Angus Association or to commercial cattle producers interested in locating superior bulls for an A.I. program or natural service. To obtain a copy simply write the American Angus Association, 3201 Frederick Boulevard, St. Joseph, Mo. 64501.

Adams Co. 4-H'ers To Hold Beef Show/Sale

YORK SPRINGS — The Adams County 4-H Beef Show and Sale will be held on Monday, Nov. 3, at Wenger's Saddlery, just north of York Springs on Rt. 15. Twenty-five Adams County 4-H members will compete for honors at the Second Annual County Show and Sale. The show will begin at 10 a.m. with the steers shown in weight classes.

The 4-H steer sale begins at 7 p.m. Buyers have two alternatives when they purchase a finished steer.

If you buy a steer for your own use, you need to make arrangements for the steer to be slaughtered, cut and wrapped to your order. A 1,000-pound steer should yield 600 pounds of beef. 4-H leaders have offered to haul your new steer, within reasonable distance, to your slaughterer.

The second alternative allows you to become an intermediate owner. Arrangements have been made with Carlisle Livestock Auction to resell your newly purchased steer. The steer will be transported to the auction the following day by 4-H leaders and will be sold on the open market. The auction will deduct a small commission and send you a check for the sale of your steer in that evening's mail.

USDA To Reopen Beef Purchase Program

WASHINGTON — Commodity Credit Corporation officials have announced that purchases of beef carcasses for export to Brazil will resume in the near future.

The CCC cancelled bids on Sept. 19 and temporarily suspended the beef purchase program due to handling problems at export points.

CCC officials said that ports on the Gulf and East Coasts are continuing to accept beef carcasses and they are being loaded on vessels.

Approximately 73,600,000 pounds of beef remain to be purchased under the program, which will be reopened with the issuance of an invitation to bid as soon as warehouse space becomes available.

Swine Dysentery Report Available

KALAMAZOO, Mich. —"Nearly 40 percent of United States swine herds are affected with swine dysentery," estimates a technical services veterinarian featured in a swine management report recently published by The Upjohn Company. "Because of the costly effects of this disease — decreased feed efficiency and average daily gain — swine dysentery is one of the most profit-robbing disease threats facing hog producers," he adds.

For a copy of this report on the treatment and control of swine dysentery, write: Swine Dysentery Report 1, The Upjohn Company, P.O. Box 5087, Kalamzaoo, MI 49001-5087.

SCS Chief Praises 'Sodbuster' Legislation

HARRISBURG – A national leader predicted that the conservation titles of the 1985 Farm Bill will bring the greatest advances in controlling the country's soil erosion threat. Wilson Scaling, chief of the USDA Soil Conservation Service, told county conservation district directors attending the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors that this was the best piece of conservation legislation "to come down the pike since the thirties."

Scaling was referring to the portions of the law which require farmers cropping highly erodable land to have a conservation plan by 1990 and the plan installed by 1995 if they wanted to take advantage of other USDA programs such as crop subsidies, crop insurance and disaster loans.

However, in view of budget reductions, Scaling said that other conservation programs such as mine reclamation, flood prevention and rural development would face some cutbacks. "We will not abandon our commitment to your priorities, but the farm bill will have to come first, reported Scaling.

He explained that nation-wide there are about two million farmers with highly erodable cropland of which one million farmers have their land protected by soil conservation practices applied in the last 50 years. "This means that we are asking SCS and conservation districts to do what took them 50 years in the next eight years," added Scaling.

Conservation district directors were complemented on their efforts in improving water quality, mainly in the Chesapeake Bay watershed. Pennsylvania's pioneering efforts in controlling nitrate levels in surface and ground water was noted. "USDA and SCS will be increasing their efforts in water quality improvement of stream and ground water in rural areas," Scaling told the group.

Water quality improvement as well as safety and health hazards elimination are achieved through the Rural Abandoned Mine Program (RAMP). Scaling noted this state's leadership in this national effort to remove the blights of past coal mining. Scaling predicted that the federal government would start the new fiscal year on a continuing resolution which would maintain funding for RAMP, Resource Conservation and Development and Watersheds at about the same level as the past year.

"If Congress passes a budget, it appears a reduction in watershed and river basin of about $23 million and an increase in soil conservation programs of about $11 million," stated Scaling.

The Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc. met earlier this month in Johnstown with about 300 county conservation district officials and other conservation leaders attending.

Animal Health Firm Donates To Poultry Industry

KANSAS CITY, Mo. – More than $12,000 has been awarded to 34 state and national poultry organizations by CEVA Laboratories, Inc., as a result of a special CEVA program supporting the poultry industry.

The nine-month program ran from Oct. 1 , 1985 through June 30, 1986, and was based on customer purchases of CEVA poultry vaccines. For vaccines purchased by the 66 participants in the program, CEVA donated 2 percent of the value of the poultry industry organization of the purchaser's choice.

Poultry organizations receiving substantial awards from the support program include: University of Florida Poultry Science Department; Georgia Poultry Federation; Pacific Egg & Poultry Association; United Egg Producers; Delmarva Poultry Industry; Ohio Poultry Association; Pennsylvania Poultry Federation; Arkansas Poultry Federation; Arkansas Poultry Improvement Association; North Carolina Poultry Federation; North Carolina Hatchery Association; Alabama Poultry & Egg Association; and the Mississippi Poultry Association.

Recently, CEVA Laboratories, Inc., contributed a $10,000 gift to the University of Minnesota College of Veterinary Medicine, Pomeroy Chair in Avian Health, in support of avian health research.

Silicone Milk Tubing Easy To Repair

Spectra International, Inc., Norwalk, Conn., is introducing transparent silicone tubing for dairy use. Made from the same material as tubing used in heart transplants and other medical uses, silicone milk tubing is hygienic, strong, flexible, long lived and unaffected by temperature and transparent.

Silicone tubing knits itself. If plastic or rubber tubing tears, the split runs the length of the tube. If silicone tubing tears, its unique molecular pattern causes the tear to curl in on itself and stop. The small section with the tear can be removed and the rest of the hose can continue to be used.

Tightly meshed resins make silicone tubing as strong as plastic, but a soft shore makes it as flexible as rubber. Silicone maintains its flexibility at any temperature. It is as flexible at -20 degrees as at +70.

Farm Credit Announces Lower Rates

BALTIMORE, Md. – New lending programs and lower mortgage interest rates for farm and rural home loans have been announced by the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore.

"Through a series of recently introduced lending programs, existing and potential borrowers may qualify for adjustable rate mortgages which currently vary from a low of 9.25 percent to 11.50 percent," according to Gene L. Swackhamer, president of the Baltimore Farm Credit Banks. The interest rate can be fixed for three, five, 10 or 15-year periods, but the loan may be amortized over longer periods.

The Baltimroe Farm Credit Banks also announced a reduction in all its standard 30-day variable rate mortgages, down to 10.75 percent from 11.25 percent, effective November 1.

Swackhamer said the wide array of mortgage programs was developed in direct response to the need for different lending programs designed to meet the individual needs of Farm Credit customers.

"The agribusiness economy and the financial markets are in a state of transition and we feel our customers need more options to help them manage their business and credit needs," Swackhamer explained.

Stanford Seed Sales Force Tours Production Facilities

The Stanford Seed Co. sales team toured their Midwest production facilities, Oct. 1 through 5. Stops on the tour included three hybrid seed corn production and conditioning locations in central and northwestern Indiana. At these locations, Stanford territory managers received "hands on" experience of research efforts, inbred selection, and the resulting hybrid.

Staggered plantings of the male and female inbred to result in the corret pollen shed is one of the critical factors in hybrid seed corn production. HYTEST hybrids are selected for their high yield potential, disease resistance, and ability to withstand less than ideal growing conditions.

Joe Butwin, general manager of the Farm Seed Division, stated, "It's a great experience to see our hybrids in every stage of production, from harvest to packaging, ready for shipment. The understanding and knowledge gained will be very helpful in responding to our customers' needs now and in the future." Hybrid seed production requires a great deal of attention to maintain the best of hybrid quality.

At the soybean production facility in Bluffton, Indiana, many soybean fields were fast approaching harvest moistures of 14.5 percent. Maintaining genetic purity is one of the most important aspects in soybean seed production. The early harvested varieties, HT1102 and HT2107, were showing excellent seed quality to assure consistent performance for spring 1987 planting. A wide range of soybean maturities can be grown in this general area. Group I (early) on through Group IV (later) can be produced with top quality results.

The final stop was made at the Seed Laboratory of Indiana Crop Improvement Association. "The Seed Lab provided an excellent opportunity to see our HYTEST Soybean Triple Testing Program in action," said Jeff Morehouse, sales manager. "The first test is a typical warm germination which gives an indication how a seed will germinate under ideal conditions. The second test, a tetrazolium dye, looks for mechanical damage of the seed coat. If we think of the soybean seed as a well-developed embryo surrounded by a fragile, thin seed coat, the care we give it is very important. A five foot drop onto a hard surface can reduce germination by 10 percent. We treat HYTEST soybeans with extra care, knowing that our customers demand top quality soybean seed, not a bag of excuses," Morehouse said.

The cold vigor test is the third and probably most critical. It measures the soybean's ability to withstand cool, wet stress conditions. HYTEST soybeans are planted in soil trays at 50°F for seven days. It is then transferred to warm test conditions to determine the seedling vigor of that specific seed lot.

Unverferth Dual-Wheel Systems Available

WARSAW, Ind. – Multiple wheel systems from Unverferth Manufacturing, Kalida, Ohio, have recently been used successfully in dualing all popular makes of mechanical front wheel drive (MFWD) tractor.

According to an Unverferth spokesman, field results have confirmed earlier independent research which indicated that MFWD tractors using dual wheels front and rear covered nearly 50 percent more acres per hour on 33 percent less fuel per acre than single-wheel tractors using two-wheel drive. Also reported were gains of 19 percent more acres per hour on 11 percent less fuel per acre when front duals were added to a MFWD tractor previously using just rear wheel duals.

In addition, field test results have suggested that using MFWD with duals front and rear provides improved traction, better flotation and control of front-end tools, a smoother ride, and less tire slippage – a tendency which can damage front drive train.

Tax Management '86

This year will be the start of the transition into a new era as far as taxes are concerned. Will they be any easier to prepare than they have been in the past? Actually, if past tax law changes are any precedent, they will probably be more difficult. It appears as though there may be one fewer form to file because investment credit will no longer be available. To offset this, it appears as though other forms will require more information.

Most of the 1986 tax return will fall under the old rules. There is one real problem area for you as a farmer. Investment tax credit (ITC) will no longer be available on purchases made after December 31, 1985. All carryover of investment credit that you had up to 1986 will be available for use for the tax year of 1986. However, carryover investment credit left in the 1987 tax year will be reduced by 17.5 percent. There are some strategies you may take to maximize your use of carryover itc. However some of them may then result in higher social security taxes or loss of the advantages of long term capital gains.

INVESTMENT CREDIT

If you have a large amount of carryover investment credit, you could do one of the following things:

(1) Increase farm taxable income for 1986 by putting off purchases of next year's fertilizer until next year. Or, paying most of 1986 end of the year bills in January. Or, selling crops and/or livestock in December rather than January. Advantage of this would be to put income into 1986 when you could use up itc and when your total tax rate may well be lower instead of higher. Disadvantage of this would be that you would pay a higher self employment social security tax due to a higher earned income for the year.

(2) Forego long term capital sales for 1986 and look for potential short term capital sales for the year. Advantage of doing this would be to increase taxable income but not long term capital gains which are more subject to the "Alternative Minimum Tax." This increase would not cause you additional social security taxes. If your strategy worked well, you would have the extra income, but would be able to offset the income tax with investment credit that you may lose in 1987. Disadvantage of this move would be selling some assets that may gain in value in the future. There would be no real tax disadvantage unless you went over the carryover of investment credit or your total income was such that the "Alternative Minimum Tax" was triggered anyway.

(3) Do nothing different. Advantages would be less work and record keeping and possible lower social security taxes for 1986. Disadvantages would be that you would lose part of your investment credit in 1987.

CAPITAL GAINS

After 1986, long term capital gains will lose their special tax treatment until the next law change (probably in 5 years or less). What should you do? If you are considering a capital sale such as a herd dispersal or land sale, taxwise, it would probably be advisable to do it this year. Why? For 1986 long term capital gains will be taxed at 40 percent of your marginal rate. Thus if your marginal rate is 32 percent, the gain is actually taxed at 12.4 percent. Even if the gain triggers the "Alternative Minimum Tax," the tax will be at a maximum of 20 percent of the gain. In 1987, capital gains will be taxed at a rate of no less than 15 percent and possibly at a rate of 28 percent.

For those of you who see a conflict between this problem and the one above concerning investment credit carryover, there is one. You will have to make a decision in some cases as to whether you want to maximize your use of investment credit or your use of long term capital gain treatment. If you have no investment credit carryover there would be no conflict. In my judgment, I would probably suggest the following solutions for the listed scenes:

(1) Scene 1: You have a carryover of investment credit and intend to stay in business. You also have some excess breeding stock you could and will sell. My suggestion would be to sell short term gain assets as much as possible rather than long term assets. Carryover of investment credit would cover the income tax bill. Short term capital gains would have no affect on social security. If they were all sold in 1986 there would be none to sell in 1987 anyway, so taxable income would be down for 1987. The year of 1987 will be a higher tax year than either 1986 or 1988 for most small businesses such as farms.

(2) Scene 2: You have no carryover of investment credit and intend to get out of farming in the next year or so. My suggestion would be to sell long term capital assets this year if possible. An installment sale evidently will not work. Pay your tax, including the "Alternative Minimum Tax," which would be no more than 20 percent of the gain. This will save at least 8 percent in taxes over the same sale in 1987.

(3) Scene 3: You have carryover of investment credit and intend to continue with farming. You do not have any particular capital assets that you can spare or desire to sell at this time. My suggestion would be to hold off on the payment of year end 1986 bills until 1987. Use up as much of your carryover investment credit as possible. If your taxable income is less than $11,000, you may be eligible for earned income credits that will pay part or all of your social security tax. If it is over $11,000, rest assured that the social security tax rate will probably be higher in 1987 than in 1986 anyway, so you may still have an overall savings.

New Equipment Fills Larger Silos

NEW HOLLAND – Blower fan tip speed is the key to filling tall, wide silos. It's especially critical for haylage because lighter weight and gumminess make it harder to blow than corn or sorghum silage.

"We have the machines for the job," says Howard Winey of New Holland. "Our 1000-r.p.m. Model 40 blower has a tip speed of over 113 miles an hour. It's this kind of blower speed you need to center-fill 20-foot (or larger) diameter silos that tower 80 feet or higher. Our smaller sizes handle corn and sorghum for tall structures. But haylage can be a problem for the 80-feet-and-over towers with the smaller blowers."

Top speeds of over 100 mph may be needed to fill tall and larger diameter silos.

"Our blowers can handle up to 150 tons of freshly chopped corn forage or 80 tons of haylage per hour," adds Winey. "Few silage makers actually need that much capacity. But it's nice to have because it allows quick turnaround time at the silo so the harvester never needs to wait for the next forage box."

There can even be a problem with a new high capacity blower where an older, smaller capacity blower got by. The problem shows up when the center-fill gooseneck doesn't have enough capacity to handle the extra material being pushed in by the new blower.

A 9-inch gooseneck is scarcely capable of handling the volume of a large blower. In effect, the gooseneck becomes the "bottleneck." The newer 12-inch goosenecks have much more capacity.

If you suspect your new blower capacity is limited, it's time to see why. And a quick check may solve the problem, according to Winey, who suggests the following check list:

1. Check blower adjustments and tractor PTO speed.
2. Drop the adjustable baffle on the Whirl-A-Feed table down. Now go to the top of silo.
3. Is the air escape hole open? Make sure.
4. Is the gooseneck secured with supports on the bottom side on which material can bridge and then plug? This is important.

If these steps don't fully solve the plugging problem, it may be time to update the gooseneck from the standard 9-inch size to the new 12-inch sizes now available from several silo pipe and accessories manufacturers.

Snow Fence Is Lightweight, Durable

MORROW, Ga. – The Tensar Corporation, a manufacturer of high-strength polymer product technology, announces the introduction of Tensar Snow Fence for use in controlling drifting snow.

The high-density polyethylene product is oriented and ultra-violet light stabilized to provide up to 20 years of service. Tensar Snow Fence has withstood winds of up to 100 miles per hour and is approved for use under Arctic conditions. It will not rust, rot or corrode and maintains a clean, stable appearance.

Tensar Snow Fence has a tensile strength of 8,100 pounds per roll width and its configuration cuts airflow by 50 percent, compared to 40 percent for the standard wood slat and wire fence. A 100-foot roll of four-foot fence weighs 39 pounds and is 10 inches in diameter making handling and installation easy. It has no sharp edges, does not splinter and does not conduct electricity.

Tensar Snow Fence

Tensar Snow Fence, like wood slat and wire, can be used effectively as temporary storage for ear corn and other temporary enclosures around a home or farmstead.

Study Shows Intensive Wheat Management Can Increase Profits

ATLANTA, Ga. – Intensive management practices which achieved triple-digit yields of soft red wheat in research plots are now being implemented with similar results on farms.

Teams of research and extension scientists from Maryland and Virginia have been studying, independently, intensive wheat management for the eastern U.S. Their research the past five years has proven that wheat yields of 100 bushels per acre, or more, can be grown consistently in research plots. The package of production practices necessary to achieve these yields in research included: the use of proven varieties, good seedbed preparation, adequate phosphorus and potassium nutrition, timely planting, tramlines, narrow rows, higher nitrogen rates in split applications, fungicides, and growth regulators.

The key questions farmers were asking, "Will it work on the farm using farmer equipment?" To find the answers, the teams from University of Maryland and Virginia Tech conducted field scale demonstrations in 1986, supported in part by the Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI) and the Foundation for Agronomic Research (FAR). Results were very encouraging, even during an extremely dry spring and summer.

Farmers should be alert to the opportunities of higher yields produced with intensive management practices and the resulting higher profit potential due to lower unit cost of production.

The table below summarizes results from several locations across the two states.

Dr. Dan Brann, Virginia Tech small grains specialist, took the results one step further and calculated profit between the two systems. He found that the intensive management system gave an additional average net income of $20.26 per acre for the four locations.

The yields on the control areas in these demonstrations were generally very good, much better than state average yields. Good management is a factor here. The Maryland and Virginia teams used good varieties, planted on time with a good seedbed, and applied fall fertilizer according to soil test on both intensively managed and control areas. Also in the Maryland tests, both areas were planted using 4-inch rows and tramlines. Dr. Ron Mulford, agronomist, University of Maryland says, "I feel we are capable of producing wheat yielding 90 to 100 bushels per acre in Maryland, on a large scale basis."

Summary of results with soft red wheat demonstrations (1986).

State	Number of Locations	—Yields (bushels/acre)— Intensive	Control	State Avg.
Maryland	4	91*	79	42
Virginia	4	73	53	38

*An average of 4 locations, 5 intensively managed systems, and 3 proven varieties (60 observations).

Farmers interested in adopting the system should learn the management factors involved and know soil and wheat growing conditions well enough so economically sound input decisions can be made, the specialists conclude.

Mastitis Control Is Subject Of Upjohn Guide

KALAMAZOO, Mich. – A dairy herd management guide recently published by The Upjohn Company features management guidelines from six nationally-known dairy experts on controlling mastitis.

"Mastitis costs dairy producers, on the average, $225 per cow per year," says Philip Sears, D.V.M., Ph.D., director of the New York State Mastitis Control Program. "This fact illustrates the economic importance of controlling mastitis in a dairy herd."

The guide discusses many factors which may lead to mastitis – improper milking procedures, equipment malfunctions, lack of a dry cow treatment program and poor herd health. These and other areas involving dairy herd management are explained in the guide which also includes several checklists that dairymen, veterinarians, animal health suppliers, dairy extensionists and others in the industry should find helpful in controlling mastitis.

For a copy of this new, comprehensive guide on controlling mastitis, write: Dairy Management Guide, The Upjohn Company, P.O. Box 5087, Kalamazoo, MI 49001-5087.

Homebred Horse Wins World Championship

MANHEIM — Earning a grand champion trophy in any type of livestock competition is always a thrill. But when you've bred the animal yourself, and he manages to top the best in the world...well, as the commercial goes, it doesn't get any better than this.

That was the case when Manheim's Odie Adcock trailered his homebred, raised and trained Tennessee Walking Horse to Shelbyville, Tennessee, in August and came home with world grand champion honors in the Plantation Pleasure Horse division.

No "dark horse" entry, Raven's Touch of Class is a six-year-old that took reserve honors behind an Oregon horse in last year's world competition. To be sure, the classy black gelding had plenty of momentum going into the show. "So far he's had 16 straight blues this year and is undefeated," says Adcock, who began his bid for the world championship three years ago.

This year, amid a field of 125 of the world's best horses, Touch of Class showed he had just a touch more class than any other entry.

Dubbed the Tennessee Walking Horse National Celebration, the show hosts some 2,500 entries and draws in excess of 30,000 spectators. Horses entered in the Plantation Pleasure division are judged on the basis of their performance of three gaits, their manners and conformation.

As in any livestock competition, starting with the right raw materials can give an owner that all-important edge. Touch of Class was sired by Delight's Raven and his dam was Ebony's Maid, both horses being the products of previous world champions.

The victory was particularly sweet for Adcock, who was born near Shelbyville and moved to Pennsylvania in the 1940's. "I rode Tennessee Walking Horses all my life," he says.

Next week Raven's Touch of Class will have yet another opportunity to strut his stuff, when Adcock travels to the Washington International Horse Show to take part in a riding exhibition. The show runs from Oct. 26 to Nov. 1.

Odie Adcock's dream came true this year when he campaigned Raven's Touch of Class to world grand champion honors at the 49th annual Tennessee Walking Horse National Celebration in Shelbyville, Tennessee.

Maryland Extension Started 75 Years Ago

Exactly 75 years ago this fall, an educational system began to take shape in Maryland that would help to revolutionize the state's agricultural economy.

With special funding in 1911 from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, five demonstration agents were appointed to serve farmers in the five southern Maryland counties. One of the appointments was effective Oct. 1. The other agents began work on Nov. 1. All are now deceased.

These agents were part of a pilot study testing the value of an idea which became the Cooperative Extension Service upon passage by Congress of the Smith-Lever Act in 1914.

Their early duties included demonstrations on spraying and pruning fruit trees. They also attempted to educate crop farmers on the merits of soil testing as a basis for applying lime and fertilizer to increase yields. And they worked with dairy farmers on production-testing programs for their herds.

The first educational work to benefit rural women and girls also was begun at this time, according to a report written in 1924 by the late Thomas B. Symons, first director of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Augustus Stabler was the first agent appointed under the special USDA program in 1911. Dr. Stabler, a physician by training, began work on Oct. 1 that year as a district agent, supervising activities of the others who were given assignments as demonstration agents in individual counties or areas.

His son, Sidney S. Stabler, joined the ranks of that first group of Maryland County agents on Nov. 1, 1911. The younger Stabler served Prince Georges County and the western half of Charles County.

Other agents starting work on that November day 75 years ago were:

John H. Drury, serving Calvert and Anne Arundel counties; G. Frank Wathen, St. Marys County; and Wilbur Dorsey, service area unknown.

Dorsey spent only three months on the job, while Sidney Stabler stayed on for two years. He spent the rest of his life in the Brighton area of Montgomery County.

When the Cooperative Extension Service began operation from the University of Maryland campus at College Park in 1914, the elder Stabler was promoted to the title of state agent. But he resigned in December that year.

The other agents, Drury and Wathen, made a successful transition into the new organizational structure.

In 1913, Drury was named to serve only Calvert County. He continued in this position through 1923. Wathen served in St. Marys County until 1934.

Apparently, most of those pioneer Extension agents put down roots in the areas where they served. A check of local telephone directories indicates that their surnames are well-known family names in those localities.

One slight exception is the Stablers, who returned to their ancestral home in upper Montgomery County.

Augustus Stabler was the son of Henry Stabler, a prominent horticulturist, who operated a nursery business in Fairfax, Va., and a sweet corn cannery at Brighton, Md. — below the present-day Triadelphia reservoir, which separates Montgomery and Howard counties.

Henry Stabler is credited with developing both a sweet corn cultivar and a black walnut variety which were named in his honor. Only the Stabler black walnut remains in existence, although few nurseries now carry it in their mail-order catalogs.

The original Stabler black walnut tree was still standing near Brighton as recently as 1940. But its ultimate fate is unknown. Like most black walnut trees, its valuable lumber probably kept it from reaching a ripe old age.

Hunting Dogs Should Have License, Rabies Inoculation

HARRISBURG — The state Department of Agriculture reminds Pennsylvania sportsmen that it is in their best interest to license hunting dogs in preparation for the coming hunting season.

"Lost animal reports increase during hunting season, and a license is an inexpensive, reliable means by which a dog can be recovered," noted Don Moul, director of the Department's Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement.

The owner of a properly tagged dog can be contacted through the county in which the license was issued.

The owner is also protected from a costly fine for failure to license. All dogs six months or older must be licensed under state law, and violations can result in fines of up to $300.

Noting the increased number of rabid wild animals, Moul also strongly recommends that sportsmen have their dogs inoculated against rabies.

He advised sportsmen who come across a stray dog in the field to approach the animal cautiously to determine if it is wearing tags. If it is licensed, the appropriate county treasurer's office should be notified as soon as poossible.

License fees are $3 for spayed or neutered dogs, $5 for others. For persons 65 and older who present proof of age, the fee is $1.75 for spayed and neutered animals and $2.75 for others. Licenses can be purchased at any county treasurer's office or through an authorized agent.

Reliable Feeding

Hard-packed and frozen silage makes feeding more than a routine chore
Patz gives you two solutions to the problem — the RD-820 ring-drive silo unloader and the 98B surface-drive silo unloader Both have a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that cut through frozen and packed silage

- Spring-tensioned powered cutter keeps silo walls free of buildup
- Preset depth-of-cut control makes feeding truly automatic (98B)
- Powerful blowers with adjustable impeller blades do the job

We'll show you how to get the most performance for your money
